You changed the subject. I'm trying to illustrate the complainer's lack of grasp on reality. He's upset about CB operators in Canada, so he posts on usenet.

there will be suspensions handed out on the cb radio there are cb radio rules if there is any bad language said on the cb radio Then cb radio operators will be suspended for the weekend and it happens again you will be kicked off the cb radio for good. I AM NOT JOKING I AM SERIOUS OF THESE CB RADIO RULES SO EVERY CB RADIO OPERATOR IN BARRIE ONTARIO CANADA WILL FOLLOW THESE RULES OR SUFFER THE CONSEQUENCES OF THEIR ACTIONS ON THE CB RADIO.I'VE HAD IT SINCE THE SUMMER. I'M NOT PUTTING UP WITH ANY RUDE LOCAL CB RADIO OPERATOR WHO SWEARS AT ME WILL SUFFER THE CONSEQUENCES. I'M NOT JOKING.

Roger has never mentioned his 268 posts a day...
Nor has Mark ever admitted his record of 300 posts in 24 hours.
Jan: 738 messages
Feb: 669 messages
Mar: 668 messages

Roger has lost more than one IP account in the last years...
Pam Hoffer can attest to that.

Houston Hunk got Roger on a couple, and Arf! Arf! got Roger on another.

Roger is getting short on dialup accounts these days. If he behaves himself, then maybe Arf! Arf! will let him keep the ones he has.

HEY MORKIE....is that like your role of turning the amateur radio service to shit?
You're a nervey, lazy training wheel ham wannabe!

Well, now. Was this Roger's post or not?
Roger is quick to cast stones, but lacks "stones" of his own.
Hiding from the Heils, hiding behind a locked door is to be expected, especially when the Little Woman, Mrs. Heil was ready to kick Roger's sphincter into next week. She stood on his front porch, knocked on his door and called him out to explain his lies.
Roger hid.

But then to lie, as Roger did, and claim that nobody was home save for his blowup flame du-jour while he was out buying groceries was the height of falsehoods.
But wait, there's more! Roger first claimed that he WAS home and refused to open the door to the Heils.

Roger has posted three different versions of this visit, and none of them are believable.

Roger hid behind the curtains and only came out and flexed his Banty Rooster muscles after the Heils were miles away.

This earned Roger the nickname of Curtains Boy.

Seems the users do things to try to kill the group. I do not care if it is dead and gone because it is no good anymore. The buzzards have picked it clean. It has not been used properly in several years. What is it good for in its current condition? Too many sexual perverts putting their trash on here.

What do you do when you have TWO HOAs? This hoa madness has got to stop. Requiring you and your house belong to TWO hoas for a single family in a single house is now very common in areas like Washington.

There would and will surely be conflicts in the requirements of what you're not allowed to have and do and what you must have and do.

I was at Burgwe King one day and overheard another guy talking about his neighbor who keeps calling the cops and hoa on him every single day for breaking the hoa rules.

He thought his blue car was okay since the hoa rules requires you must have ONLY a blue car. No other colors or shades are allowed.

She called the cops on him and reported him to the hoa for illegally breakinng the law by illegally having a light blue car against hoa rules instead of a blue car as required.

Towed and impounded. So next he bought a car ONE shade darker to be in compliance. No manufacturer makes a shade between what he had which was towed and impounded and what he bought to be in compliance.

She called the cops on him and reported him to the hoa for illegally breaking the law by illegally having a dark blue car instead of a blue car as required.

Towed and impounded and once again fined by the hoa.

Now, since he was only middle class, he could not afford a third car.

So he started taking the public bus to work.

She called the cops and reported him to the hoa for that. She did not like seeing the public bus in the neighborhood.. according to her, he was now breaking several hoa rules at the same time since "taking the public bus lowers the property values of the houses since only poor people take public transportation and buses to work and elsewhere and violates the hoa rules against "residents are not allowed to do anything which lowers property values" and the hoa rules against "no obnoxious activities allowed"

among others.

In this last case, about the bus, the cops told him to just keep doing what he is doing since he's not doing anything illegal. (according to the cops).

Of course that didn't and doesn't stop his hoa from saying it is indeed illegal to take a public bus even when it stops on a public street in front of the hoa since it lowers the property values of the hoa homes since only poor people ride public buses and public transportation (according to the hoa) and that's the impression other people get of the neighborhood when they see him getting on or off the public bus. 9according to the hoa) and fining him for it.

Which he can't afford since he's only middle class.

Also even when she just sees him outside waiting for the bus to come, she reports him for it daily. Even when she doesn't see him waiting for it, such as if he comes out of his house right before getting on, she reports him for it.

Because she doesn't like to see public buses since she equates them with "undesirable poor people who I don't want to see in this neighborjhood because they don't make as much money as I think they should make to be desirable people" despite enviromental groups trying to get everyone to ride public buses instead of driving cars.

You obviously have a serious mental illness.

I'm not at all sure what you hope to accomplish in posting these wild fabrications here. There is no doubt that many home owner associations have absurd and onerous rules, but I can assure you that there is no HOA in existence anywhere in this country that mandates that all residents must drive cars of one exact shade of blue.

And, as someone who worked for over 20 years in the transit industry, I know for a certainty that NO HOA, anywhere, has the power to mandate who may or may not ride on public transportation. In fact, any attempt to do so would be a serious violation of federal civil rights laws.

Also, if a woman made a habit of "calling the cops every single day" to complain about a neighbor who is not violating any law whatsoever, she (the woman) would very quickly find HERSELF in jail, charged with harassment and/or filing a false report. Law enforcement officers tend to take a rather dim view of that sort of thing.

Clearly you have a major persecution complex, and you really owe it to yourself to seek competent psychiatric counseling.

70. why is a legal antenna all of a sudden illegal just because you changed the station on your radio???

Why is an antenna on a Grundig YB 400PE radio that is legal and not against hoa rules all of a sudden an illlegal antenna against hoa rules just because you changed the station on your radio?

In other words, what makes it all of a sudden become " a ham antenna" or "a cb antenna" just because you changed the station from a fm broadcast station or an am broadcast station to a ham station or cb station?

It's the same frickin' antenna on the same frickin' radio.

If it's a ham antenna or cb antenna when it's tuned to a ham or cb station, then it's a ham antenna when it's tuned to a am/fm broadcast station and not to a ham or cb station.

If it's not a ham antenna or cb antenna when tuned to an am/fm broadcast station, then it's not a ham antenna or cb antenna when tuned to a ham or cb station.

It's the SAME friuckin' antenna on the SAME frickin' radio.

How about when it's tuned to a frequency which picks up both broadcasts and hams at the same time.

you pro-hoa nazis say there's no such thing and never was.

Well, you're wrong as usual. Part of the 7 mhz band used to be used by both broadcasters and hams, and still is from what I hear on it, although it's not supposed to be being used by broadcasters anymore.

The SAME frequency was sometimes a broadcaster, then later a ham radio operator in the SAME night and vice versa. And sometimes it was both a broadcaster and ham radio operator at the EXACT SAME TIME.

So what it is it then, a legal broadcast antenna allowed by hoas or an illegal ham radio antenna not allowed by hoas???

I don't understand this new radio theory that the EXACT SAME FRICKIN antenna on the EXACT SAME FRICKIN radio is a legal antenna nott against hoa rules and not a ham antenna when tuned to an am/fm/sw broadcast station all of a sudden becomes an illegal ham antenna when the tuning knob on the radio is turned from 1100 khz to 28700 khz and becomes an illegal cb antenna when the tuning knob on the radio is tuned to 27185 khz.

Why don't you list it in your rules then that homeowners are not allowed to tune their indoor portable radios to anywhere on the dial the radio can cover, but only to the stations.the hoa says the residents are allowed to tune to?

Oh and since you'tre doing that anyways, why not add a clause that also says which broadcast tv stations the residents are and are not allowed to watch inside the privacy of their own homes???

And which cable tv stations the hoa residents are and are not allowed to watch inside the privacy of their own homes???

You hoas are against everything the founding fathers of this country stood for and everything this country stood for and is supposed to still stand for.

All you hoas should be outlawed permanently.

IT'S THE SAME FRICKIN ANTENNA ON THE SAME FRICKIN RADIO.

Did you know there ARE HOA's which tell you not only what color your house may be painted on the outside, and from which vendor the paint MUST be purchased (I lived in one in Northern Illinois), but there are those that also specified what colors your house may be painted on the INSIDE because opaque drapes are NOT permitted in the community, and visible colors from the street must be maintained according to the HOA Architectural Plan. (About 2 miles from me, also in Northern Illinois.) This particular community also forbids automobiles which do not fit in the attached garage, modification of the garage to accomodate said vehicles, and parking the vehicle outside of the garage after sundown.

They also tell you how you may mow your lawn, and what, if any, grass may be planted on your property.

His point about the blue car, itself was absurd. But as an example of absurdity, he's not so off the mark.

An HOA in Maryland required all copper awnings (themselves installed for their maintenance free nature, and their rich patina after weathering) to be painted every year, to be painted white, and for the paint to be exclusively purchased from a single 'approved' vendor. Violations of these practices were dealt with severely, with fines, and other penalties. Including the inability to sell the property in order to exit the community. The HOA had to sign off on any sale, and the asking/selling price.

So, his point is well made by his absurd example.

Did you know there ARE HOA's which tell you not only what color your house may be painted on the outside, and from which vendor the paint MUST be purchased (I lived in one in Northern Illinois), but there are those that also specified what colors your house may be painted on the INSIDE because opaque drapes are NOT permitted in the community, and visible colors from the street must be maintained according to the HOA Architectural Plan. (About 2 miles from me, also in Northern Illinois.) This particular community also forbids automobiles which do not fit in the attached garage, modification of the garage to accomodate said vehicles, and parking the vehicle outside of the garage after sundown. (Think about that. You pay a quarter of a million dollars for someone to tell you how to park your car on your own property. Amazing.)

They also tell you how you may mow your lawn, and what, if any, grass may be planted on your property.

His point about the blue car, in itself, was absurd. But as an example of absurdity, he's not so off the mark.

An HOA in Maryland required all copper awnings (themselves installed for their maintenance free nature, and their rich patina after weathering) to be painted every year, to be painted white, and for the paint to be exclusively purchased from a single 'approved' vendor. Violations of these practices were dealt with severely, with fines, and other penalties. Including the inability to sell the property in order to exit the community. (The HOA had to sign off on any sale, and the asking/selling price before any closing was complete.)

So, his point is well made by his absurd example.

As a matter of fact, the HOA nearby my own neighborhood has forbidden both public transportation busses and school busses to pass within the community. Plans for suburban busses to pick up at two common areas in the community were blocked by the HOA, and subsequently abandoned. There is a bus stop at the entrance.n This is NOT a gated community. And there is a school bus stop at the entrance as well, where all children not going to the school provided by the HOA (and all residents pay tuition to this school, children or not) must be taken to the bus stop by their parents, attended until the bus arrives, and then collected immediately upon bus arrival after school. The children are NOT permitted to walk the block from the stop, to the house.

So, what you know, "for a fact", is actually not correct.

Actually, FCC has been clear about this. You can't sign away those rights to HOA's. A licensed amateur, CB operator, may have an exterior antenna. And the equal housing laws say you have the right to live anywhere you choose, so he may put up an antenna, and the HOA may not compel him to remove it.

Further, TV and small dish satellite antennae are protected species. They can't be removed by HOA fiat, either.

And...(ahem....apologies to Garrett Morris) IF YOU ACTUALLY READ
THE POST, HE SAID HE LIVES ON AN NON HOA PROPERTY.

As, in fact, do I.

Sadly, and in fact, many HOAs are not aware of the FCC exoneration, so the silly, angry malcontents hire an attorney to force an Injunction upon the Ham operator. (Sorry, but CB ops are not included Peter)
What results is a often construed and costly legal action for both parties, only to find that the HOA was in the wrong. All too many lawyers are not aware of the FCC regulations and when they side with the HOA, and after several hours and hundreds of dollars later, the HOA ends up with a hefty legal fee.
What I have seen many times over is that the complaining neighbors don't like the FCC exemption and will continue to bicker with the Ham neighbor over their perceived "property value devaluation". They claim that they are getting TVI, RFI, or other issues with their electronic devices when, in actuality, it is almost always a nearby CB type who is causing the problem.

Also, our city recently made an attempt to ban those small satellite TV dishes that are appearing. The city wanted to ban the dishes to the back yards or the rear of the homes. A local Ham op became involved and set the City straight and the Mayor and his City Council dropped the ordinance from the books.

Bravo for you. A good example is someone driving from pa to ohio to michigan. or vice versa.

If someone in Ohio is talking to so someone in pa, they get yelled at that they're not following the band plan, then when they switch to follow the band plan they're told to, the other operator gets yelled at thet they're not following the band plan.

So what is a person living near the state line supposed to do, use the Ohio bandplan or the PA bandplan??

No, using the bandplan of the state you're currently in (as suggested in these newsgroups long ago) does NOT work.

When driving from your job in the one state to your home in another state, and you're talking to your friend, then you cross the state line while you're friend is at home in the other state, if you both switch to the bandplan of the state you're in, then your friend gets yelled at for not following the bandplan. If you remain following the bandplan of the state you're friend is in, then you get yelled at for not following the bandplan.

The same for Michigan and Ohio.

And it gets even more complicated when you're having a three way conversation between Michigan, Ohio, and PA repeaters and/or simplex.

So yes, I also will use my amateur radio on any frequency I want to any way I want to, within FCC rules.

I have already noticed at least FOUR different 2 meter bandplans that can be heard and contacted from my area.

There may be more, but as of this writing, I only know of four.

What is simplex for some is repeater inputs for the others.

What are repeater outputs is simplex for some.

Now, which of the FOUR bandplans should I use?

If I want to use the repeaters, I don't have any choice except to violate one or more of the bandplans.

If I want to use simplex, I don't have any choice but to violate one or more of the bandplans.

The usual answer to this is to follow the ARRL bansplan.

Wrong, the ARRL bansplan says local bandplans superceded the ARRL bandplan.

There are FOUR DIFFERENT local 2 meter bandplans in this area.

So again, which of the FOUR bandplans should I use?

It is really hard for "Me" to believe that you (RadioGuy) are this STUPID. but the again we see your kind on JayWalking all the time....

BandPlans are nothing more than a convention used by local, regional and country Ham Organizations to structure a working agreement for cooperative use of Licensed Frequencies. They hold NO Force of Law, beyond that specified in Part 97.

If you were not such a DUFUS, you would understand this from the getgo...
Maybe you are "To Stupid to be Licensed"... Has that thought ever occurred to you...

Around here, they are. They stood up for themselves against a local HOA, and they won, under the same provisions as Hams.

88. frs/gmrs radios are illegal in New York and Kentucky while mobile and in Indiana eben while portable

Every FRS/GMRS radio I have seen all scan. Therefore, they are definitely scanners.

Since the deseral exemption applies only to ham radio operators and even then only to ham radio transcievers which can also scan out of band, and not to any other type of scanner.

It is against the law to use a frs/gmrs radio while mobile in New York, Kentucky and a few other states.

And in Indiana, not only is it illegal to use your frs/gmrs radio while mobile, it's also against the law for you or your kids to use your frs/gmrs while portable (while walking around outside of your house since thast is "in puiblic". where the public can see you.

Cops have already illegally confiscated ham hts they see in vehicles.

Sometimes the ham can get out of it by showing the cop their fcc-issued ham license.

And somerimes not. i read that the LAPD does not and will not accept federally FCC-issued ham licenses as proof of license and that they only accept proof of being licensed to use your ham radio if the ham radio permit was issued by the LAPD. from what I read posted elsewhere.

But what does a unlicenced frs user do when a cop sees their frs radio which doesn't even cover gmrs frequencies in the car?

It's still a scanner, but in that case, the driver has no radio license to show to the cop since it's FRS and a GMRS license wouldn't cover it anyway, even if the radio was one of the newer fts/gmrs radios and the driver was a gmrs licensee since federal law doesn't erxempt gmrs licensees, only ham licensees.

It's also against the U.S. Constitution to apply laws unequally to U.S. citizens.

Therefore, to remain constitutional, either ALL citizens including hams must be banned from having radios capable of scanning while in their vewhicles or ALL citizens including non-hams must be allowed to have radios capable of scanning the exact same frequencies while driving.

You are way off base on this. Read the Indiana scanner law and how it pertains to POLICE radios...NOT GMRS or non police use frequencies.

Read it slowly. And then read it again.

I have been driving for years without any accidents, sometimes while talking on a radio, sometimes not,

Then one day, my nost nimby neighbor started complaining about the way
I was driving (the way where I never had any accidents at all) because the way I was , had been, and was still driving was and is offensive to her and a gives a bad impression of the neighborhood thereby lowering her property values.

and then this same nosy nimby neighbor proceeded telling me how I should be driving and the ONLY correct way (to her) for me t o drive.

The result: I was in an automobie accident.

So if states and cities want to ban using crll phones without a hands
free device, they should also outlaw all passengers talking to the driver in a car.

Because it's a fact that backseat drivers are more dangerous than and cause even more accidents than talking on a cellphone without a hands
free device while driving.

If you get stopped for a violation, answer to the violation first.
The cop is not going to look at your radio and ask you if it is a GMRS, FRS, or a friggin' CB.

OTOH, if your radio is receiving police frequencies, you WILL be asked about that.

Since GMRS, FRS and CB radios do not receive Public Safety frequencies, you are good to go.

In Indiana, the posession of a radio that receives police frequencies is a misdemeanor. An officer can confiscate the scanner and arrest you via citation OR can take you into custody. For most first offenses the officer will cite and release and your scanner will be returned to you after your Court Hearing.
Indiana police officers do not make arrests for those who wander around in public while using FRS or GMRS radios.
Radioguy is lying. He is a troll.

The point was your use of your first initial followed by your middle and last name.
This seems to the fad du jour of late, especially for attorneys.

That's been a "fad" for decades - watch some 1940's movies some time to see how various "holier than thou" people would adopt such a moniker (often for comedy and often at their own expense)...

Based on the reading, I am not even sure that a scanner capable of receiving police frequencies is illegal unless it is used to commit a crime or hinder emergency services (although it is easy to see how the law could be construed to mean otherwise). The law allows the use of a "police radio" (let's assume for a minute that this means a scanner or a Realistic Patrolman portable) during the course of a person's otherwise lawful business. That could be practically anything a person does from making breakfast to driving the kids to school to fishing under the old sycamore tree.

What you laugh at, sleeves not withstanding, is your affair, and of no interest to anyone but you.

Actually, I'm a broadcaster. I have always gone by "Pete" or "Peter." The 'D.' is part of my signature, nothing more. My grandfather called "Pete." My parents called me "Pete." But for official purposes, the signature has always been "D. Peter" or "David Peter," since I was taught how to write.

Why this bothers you, or why you think you should have input on the practice is beyond ken.

But you feel free to make this about me.

My post was actually about something far more important. And, repeating, I'm actually on your side: You SHOULD be able to decide 'where and how I should operate my station. I will do it my way, and will do so without your "guidance".'

But again, feel free to make this about me.

The term DOES NOT include a radio designed FOR USE ONLY IN A DWELLING.

As added by Acts 1977, P.L.342, SEC.1. Amended by P.L.162-1994, SEC.1."

You're implying that mere possession of a "police radio" is a misdemeanor in the state of Indiana, period.

The law clearly states that it only applies to vehicular or portable use - NOT to possession of a "police radio" inside of a home or other building.

The law provides MANY exemptions, incuding licensed hams, newspaper or TV reporters, individuals who sell or service police radios, or basically anyone who has some form of written permission (a permit) from their local law enforcement.

In three places, the law makes it clear that there is nothing illegal about having a radio capable of receiving police frequencies in one's own home or place of business.

It would be really strange if ANY possession of a "police radio" was illegal in the state of Indiana, considering that the Electra company, who for all intents and purposes invented and popularized the police scanner with their famous "Bearcat" line, was located in Indiana (before merging with Uniden of Japan in the 1980's.)

Oh yes, I'm well aware of the ridiculous and extreme regulations that some HOA's set forth regarding the color of one's house, landscaping etc.

I am no fan of HOA's - I don't live in an HOA-controlled property myself, and never would.

I'm all for speaking out against the extreme policies of HOA's and the control freaks who run them - but when someone like "Radioguy" goes on and on about HOA's in a way that makes himself look like a complete whackjob, he discredits and diminishes the sane, rational people who try to fight HOA's.

I bought the radio from Radio Shack a few years ago.

I just found out that less than a year ago, in 2009, according to the FCC, the motorola t6250 (radio (and other similar raduios) is and always has been an illegal radio completely illegal to use at all because it can do speech inversion,(which is coded messages according to the FCC), even though it has been type accepted by the FCC and approved by the FCC as completely legal to use in the U.S.

The FCC even said such radios are and always have been illegal even though the FCC type accepted it as legal and approved it as legal.

and that it's iullegal to use at all even in non-scramnled mode without speech inversion enabled since it is an illegal radio.

So since the radio is and always has been completely illegal to use even in non-scrambled mode since it is capable of scrambling, the radio is NOT fit for the purpose which it was sold for and sold as

But Radio Shack won't give me a refdund for the illegal radios they sold.

I had no idea at the time I bought the radio that it was illegal since it was FCC-type accepted as legal.

But all the lawyers and judges say "ignorance of the law is no excuse".

How do I get my money back for Radio Shack illegally and fraudently selling me illegal radios under the false, phony, and fraudelent pretense that they were completely legal since they were fcc type accepted and fcc-approved as legal?

Apparently, this is an oversight of the FCC. Some times things just get done automatically. When you have a major corp. producing millions of radios annually, introducing new types constantly, paperwork becomes rather routine.

Midland radio is in the midst of the same legal action against them for doing the same thing. The FCC contends these radios are illegal because the "message is coded". However, as the FCC also does not precisely define exactly what is meant by "coded".

As I see it, the rules are basically saying, sideband operation is not allowed. Which I believe this is how the message is being coded.

What to do with your radio? I'd say use the damn thing as is. As far as you are concerned the radio is legal to operate as is. It is up to the FCC to ensure manufacturers comply with the rules. Not yours, not the vendors.

One option might be to sell it on ebay.

What if you're charged with the henious crime of transmitting a coded message? Hire a good attorney and fight the bastards. You purchased, in good faith, what you believed was a perfectly legal radio and one that was approved by the FCC themselves. Then, don't do business with Radio Shack.

I learned a long time ago, Radio Shack is a rip off on electronics. If you pay $10, the store manager paid $2 for it.

may be illegal.
What does the law say about selling and owning it?

You can file suit, if you want. Realistically, I don't see you winning.
You would need to prove Radio Shack sold it to you knowing it was illegal. By your own claim, the FCC listed it as legal, so it's very likely the people at Radio Shack who make decisions regarding what to sell and what not to sell also thought it was legal.
You will need to be able to prove they knew the reason you were buying it. Common sense indicates you bought it for use, but common sense and the law aren't always in agreement.
Richard offered a POSSIBLE idea. If it is legal to buy and sell, tyr selling it on ebay. It's unlikely you'll get what you paid for it, but you can get some money.

FYI, the FCC rules state mostly that is illegal to import, manufacture, sell, possess and use such illegal equipment.

The most common of these violations occur when a radio is produced to be used on the 10 or 12 meter ham radio band. With the capability of being used on the 11 meter band which is known "Citizens Band" (CB).

The FCC routinely tests these radios and if the find any way that it can transmit on 11 meters, it is classified as illegal. Manufacturers do so to avoid the "type accpetance" requirement and to sell their radios to enthusiasts known as "truckers". Buying one can cost you $10,000 and the loss of your radio.

For the law itself, read up on "illegal CB radios".

Pack your radio up. Send it to http://sales.kb9rqz.com and trade it in on a "10 meter" radio. Maybe something with a turbo echo.

And do be sure that the radio can be converted to 11 meters.
Dumbass, ham radios don't come with echo crap. As that is illegal as hell.

Mark allows credit, too.
Depending upon your financial status he will allow a "blow-as-you-go" payment plan.
AB8MQ has already traded two lightly used blow-up dolls for a Ringo Ranger antenna that Mark tried to use on 80 meters.
The mag mounts are extra and an added shipping charge will be assessed depending upon your zip code.

Read the frickin rules a-hole. Guess which radios are on the banned list? The very ones you mention. Do ham radios come equipped with channel selectors who's range is between 1 and 40? 10 meter voice begins at 28.3, well above the 11 meter band.

Dual operation of this type is just not permitted, period.

All Galaxy DX radios are banned.

Echo serves no purpose other than to show off.

http://sales.kb9rqz.com is the source for all of your amateur radio needs!

I got my new radio from Mark and it rocks! Nothing like calling CQ DX on 10 meters with your turbo echo adjusted just right.

I had some asshole crying about my radio sounded like a CB. I just told him to fuck off and turned on my slap-back audio (also from kb9rqz) and repeated my callsign over and over again. He got pissed!!

REMEMBER.....we are the new breed of hams!!

I didn't realizewhat a lid he actually is. The CCRAA also fired him as their president after they found out what a sexual deviant/pervert he is. You may want to find a new elmer....

FWIW - I bought some GMRS radios at RS a few years back, branded with the RS name, and they work great, excellent range, excellent voice sound and pitch, and they don't chew up batteries either. Tough as nails too - they've been dropped, kicked and soaked, and they still run great. I suspect their output is around 1 - 1.5 w, because they communicate farther and more clearly and easily than any FRS radio with which I am familiar. At $45 the pair, I'd stand by these units anytime.

I have had junk from RS too, but these units are not among them.

I don't invert my speech ;-)

165. Recommendations for mobile antenna for FJ Cruiser

The set up is….Cobra 29 with a Davemade M80 driving a Davemade 400.

I had a Wilson 5000 mounted on my roof. It worked great. However, the FJ Cruiser has a full roof rack so I was considering a whip off the rear bumper. Has anyone seen an antenna that could mount on a roof rack? Thanks in advance.

You'd probably have to fab a mount to work with the rack, but with that set up, a Predator 10K would kick some serious butt.

174. 50 Emergency Uses for Your Camera Phone

Some of these are good. Some, I'm not sure. In several days, I'll post my thoughts.
Chris Young
==========
50 Emergency Uses for Your Camera Phone
by Paul Purcell

In an emergency you'll not only need to provide and receive help, but after the event is over, you'll face the prospect of return, repair, and rebuilding. Central to all these activities is communication and documentation. Everything in our society carries a heaping helping of red tape, and disasters are no different. Below are 50 of the many ways one simple tool, in this case the camera phone, can be used in an emergency to help you document, record, and relay some of your more important pieces of information.

Granted, any camera could be used for some of the things listed below, but the phonecam carries a distinct advantage with it. It can immediately transmit the pictures it takes.
If you don't have a phonecam, that's okay. Go with what you have, or with what you can afford.
Disposable film cameras and digital cameras are acceptable, and microcassette recorders that will let you record information verbally are useful as well.

However, the phonecam rules, so let's look at ways yours can be used in an emergency. The following are excerpts from our book "Disaster Prep 101" found at www.disasterprep101.com.

1. Last minute child ID. Whenever the family might be separated, take a series of last-minute pictures of all family members, especially the kids, and also the pets. You might need this to reunite the family later.

2. Draw a map, shoot it, send it. Trying to send or receive directions to or from a certain location and voice directions just aren't cutting it? Draw a map on paper, take a picture, and send.

3. Injury photos to the doctor. Suppose you're in a situation where you can't get to help and they can't get to you, and someone's sick or injured. If there are visible signs or symptoms, your phonecam can relay these to medical personnel who can walk you through whatever treatment is possible where you are.

4. Damage documentation for insurance. In mass catastrophes, it'll be days or longer before even the first insurance adjusters get there to file claims on your behalf. Photo all the damage you can in case some of it gets repaired or cleaned up before your agent arrives.

5. Report suspicious activity. Are you part of a neighborhood watch group? If you see suspicious activity, you can upload pictures of suspects and the situation to the Police immediately.

6. "Here's the landmark I'm near." In an emergency, gathering with the family at a "rendezvous point" is one of the most critical steps you'll take. If you don't have a fixed meeting place, you can send pictures of where and what you're near so the others can find you. This also works well if you're lost and/or injured in the wilderness and you need to relay pictures of landmarks so Search and Rescue teams can find you.

7. "Meet us at this landmark." If you have a fixed rendezvous point and you want to relay the info to others, send a pic you already have on file, so others will know where to meet. Take these file photos while compiling your family emergency plan.

8. Photo shopping list. If you're about to stock your pantry in anticipation of an emergency, such as if you're planning on sheltering-in-place during a hurricane, take a picture of your pantry as a quick way to list things you need from the store.

9. Driving directions. If you're trying to tell others where a certain location is, such as an emergency shelter, you can send them a picture by picture set of driving directions. This is another good thing to create while putting your family reaction plan together.

10. "Meet this person." Let's say your family had to evacuate, and they know the address they're supposed to head to, but not everyone has met the family emergency contact person. Send them a picture of the person they're supposed to meet, or you can send your contact person some pictures of the people heading their way.

11. Last minute property inventory. Just as you'd photo the family in anticipation of an emergency, you should do the same with your property. If you're about to evacuate, snap some quick shots of your property to include any new purchases not included in your last full home inventory, and to show the current condition of your property in general.

12. "Adventure" journal. Who says every potential disaster situation has to be a total disaster? One way to look at it is as an adventure. Take some pictures to record what you do, the places you go during evacuation, people you meet along the way, etc.

13. Situational severity. In a large-scale emergency, first responders will be spread thin and overworked. They might not have anyone to send to get you out of a partly-flooded neighborhood, or to help put out a tiny grass fire. However, the situation might actually be worse than they understand, and you might need some serious help. Sending a picture of just how bad the situation is might help.

14. Quick text messaging. Time is critical in an emergency and so are communications. You might not have enough time to punch in a text message, and the lines might not be open long enough for a conversation. If that's the case, write a note on paper, take a picture, and send that.

15. Minor traffic mishap documentation. If you have a minor fender-bender while evacuating, and there are no injuries and no one's car needs to be towed, most jurisdictions will tell you to "swap info and move along." If that's the case (always call 911 to ask and make sure), take photos of the vehicular damage, people involved, witnesses at the scene (and their car tag numbers), and if your phone has video, take video of others involved in the accident to show their injuries (or lack thereof).

16. Wallet backup. Just as you'd photograph family members and property, take pictures of your wallet's contents (or important documents) in order to record numbers, and show that cards actually are or were in your possession. Be very careful when storing or transmitting these pictures as the info is very sensitive and can be used for identity theft!

17. Inclement weather reporting. If you're the first one to see the funnel cloud, heavy hail, or a river starting to overflow, sending a picture in to the weather service or proper authorities is undeniable and rapid proof that severe weather or other emergency is occurring.

18. First Responder intel. The more first responders know about the true nature of a collapsed house, an auto accident, a fire in progress, or any other emergency, the more rapid and appropriate a reaction they can make.
19. Missing persons report. Send picture of picture. Let's say a family member goes missing. In addition to the last minute photos you took, you could also send a picture of a photograph you might have in your purse or wallet. This will save a lot of time for you and the authorities.

20. Relay property damage to or from neighbors. Suppose your neighborhood was heavily damaged in a disaster. Whoever goes home first, either you or your neighbors, could photograph neighborhood and home damage and relay the info to the other.

21. Help insurance adjusters find your property. After a devastating incident, street signs will be gone, house numbers won't be visible, etc. Take current pictures of landmarks or any kind of unique damage near or at your property. This will make it easier for your insurance adjuster to find you.

22. Copy the bulletin boards. If you're in an emergency shelter, and there's an info bulletin board, you might need a lot of the info posted, but not have time to write or anything to write with or on. Take a picture!

23. Bus, subway, or city map info. If you're anywhere you're not familiar with and you have any sort of posted map, take a picture of it to refer to later if you get lost.

24. Document your route. When traveling to a new area, and either others will be following later, or you want to be sure you can find your way back, be sure to take pictures along the way of landmarks at turns you make, forks in the road, etc.

25. Record medicines or food brand needs. If you have to relay information about your medications to a doctor, or if you have special dietary needs and need to send information regarding certain product or food brands to an outside person or service, then a picture really is worth a thousand words.

26. Remember parking spot locations. Don't trust your memory, trust a picture. Take a quick pic of where you left your vehicle either in a lot or in a parking deck.

27. Pic of engine problems for mechanic. Should you break down on the road and your vehicle shows outward signs of engine problems such as steam shooting from a certain hose, or liquids dripping from a place on the engine, send a pic to a mechanic who may be able to talk you through a quick fix to get you back on the road.

28. Business or service function and/or hours. Just as you'd photograph a map, you might want to copy posted business hours or listed service functions (and pricing) for later review and recall. This is also a good way to report price gouging on the road.

29. Allowable child custodian. If you can't get to your kids who are at school or some other function, relay a picture of the person who is coming in your stead to pick them up. Send this picture to both the school or function, and to your child (if they have their own phonecam).

30. Relay info on injured or hospitalized people. You might be in a position to send pictures to people looking for loved ones or vice-versa.
31. Remember your hotel room. Whenever you get a hotel room, take a picture so you can find your way back. Photo not only the room number on the door, but the name of the motel and adjacent buildings for reference.

32. ID your evac gear. As with all your belongings, take a picture to prove ownership. One situation where this might come in handy is with petty theft in emergency shelters. It's actually a rare occurrence, but it's best to be ready to prove things are yours.

33. Photo scavenger hunt. If you've settled down a bit, say at your emergency shelter or temporary stopover, you'll need something to entertain the kids. Give them a short list of things they should take a picture of. First one to take all the listed pictures wins!

34. Identify the close-up. Another entertainment idea is to take a really close up picture of something while the kids aren't looking, and have them figure out what it is.

35. Document your whereabouts during civil unrest. Another remote possibility, but since these things do happen, it's best to be ready. Let's say you're in a location where looting is occurring, or rioting about to happen. You can either help the Police by secretively taking pictures of the perpetrators (not really recommended for safety reasons), or you can take pictures as you're leaving the area to document the fact that you weren't part of the trouble.

36. ID the rescue team. If a rescuer is picking up your child or pet, you want to photo the rescuer (and the child or pet) and the vehicle they used. Get their name tag in the picture as well as registration numbers on helicopters, vehicle tags numbers, or names of boats.

37. Document your cleanup efforts. It may be a while before your insurance adjuster can arrive. Take pictures of the damage as you found it, and steps you took during cleanup. Regarding insurance or recovery grants, NOTHING beats documentation!

38. Document your repair or cleanup expenditures. If you buy goods or supplies, rent equipment, or hire a service, in addition to keeping your receipts, be sure to photograph the goods acquired, the equipment being used, or the service being performed (also photo the people involved where possible).

39. Transmit property item pics to retrieval companies. Some scenarios will see you unable to return home. Some companies are trained and equipped to go into these areas to help people gather certain belongings. Having property photos stored on your phone will allow you to send pictures of specific property items you'd like retrieved.

40. Document location / status of fellow evacuees. Authorities will not only want to know who is injured, dead, or missing, but they'll want to know who is okay and where they are. Taking pictures of those you meet along with way whether it's during an evacuation, or of people at your emergency shelter, will help ID the living and well.

41. Bridge the language barrier. A picture is worth a thousand words. Ever try to find the restroom in a foreign country and you didn't know the proper phrase? Imagine how guests in our country would feel in emergency situations where they needed much more than a restroom and didn't know how to ask. Pictures would make that process a hundred times easier, whether you're trying to understand their needs, or relay yours to them.

42. Transmit road conditions. Let's say after a hurricane, you're one of the first families returning to a damaged area, and you're taking back roads. Authorities (or others following you later) might not have had a chance to check every avenue of return. If there's damage that needs to be reported, or no damage at all (which should also be reported), sending a picture can relay tons of information, especially if a roadway has received damage and road crews need to know what kind of damage and its extent.

43. Relay traffic conditions. If family or group members are separated, or heading in different directions, you might need to pass along traffic conditions or the info from traffic warning signs.

44. Crime scene evidence. Many times, people have returned from an evacuation to a home that was undamaged during the event, but later looted. Since the Police might not be able to show up right away, go ahead and take "crime scene" photos (for both Police and insurance) just as you'd photograph your property if it was damaged in the event.

45. Too much info on the screen to copy? Shoot it. Should the TV flash some pertinent information on the screen and you don't have time to write it down, or should you have a lot of text on a computer screen and you can't print it out, take a picture for later review.

46. Positive ID to or from your doctor and/or pharmacy. Medical needs are a very real probability during an emergency. Since you can't get to your doctor in person, and they might be phoning in a prescription to a pharmacy that doesn't know either of you, use your phone to verify your identity to your doctor, and your doctor can relay the picture to the pharmacy so they'll know who's coming to get the meds.

47. Emergency supply information. Suppose a developing emergency has caught you low on goods or gear and you send different people to different locations to help stock up. If supplies are low, these family members may need to send a picture of the types or brands of items available so you can make educated purchase decisions.

48. Picture file of "Last Minute List" items and shutdown. Though everyone should keep a "bugout kit" packed and ready to go, there will be items which cannot duplicated and/or packed in advance. In addition to creating a written "Last Minute List," create a photo file showing all the items you want to take with you (and their location) and things you should do to shut down and secure the house before leaving.

49. Evac atlas. Create your own "evac travel atlas" of emergency assets available along your probable evacuation routes. This might include lodging, ATM locations, hospital emergency rooms, etc. Travel the routes and take photos, or draw your own maps and shoot that.

50. Photo reaction plan for the reading disabled. If a family member suffers from any reading disability, such as Dyslexia, using photos is a must. Create a photo file that will relay your entire emergency plan without using text.

51. Since InfoQuest always does more than expected, here's a bonus idea. Your camera phone can relay pictures of structural damage to a structural engineer who can tell you how to shore up certain walls, where safe spots might be, where hidden dangers might be, etc., as your Search and Rescue team looks through a collapsed building for survivors.

These are just some of the many ways a camera phone can be used to help in an emergency. Take a look around at your family and your current threats, needs, and assets and look at ways you can put your phonecam to use. Better yet, look at the things you can do so that your phonecam isn't needed at all!

Those PO boxes do NOT hide your queenly selves. All one need do is fill out the appropriate form and pay the required fee to get the address of the boxholder.

Like for example...Tra1nfag!
QRZ says:
N2RPL
BARRY D PEARSE
KEYPORT, NJ 07735

BUT, we KNOW the real deal thanks to the USPS...what an efficient organization!

BARRY D PEARSE
142 Augusta St
South Amboy, NJ 08879
(732) 727-8589

Keyclowns cannot hide!

I have not been on this group in about ten years. I am sad to see that REC.RADIO.CB has changed so much. 9 out of 10 posts are merely homosexual banter. (Disgusting!) There is very little talk about CB Radio. I learned a lot about radio in the late 90’s by reading posts from this group and posting questions. I guess the days of straight people actually discussing radio mods; antennas and radio theory in this forum are gone. Very Sad!

I also miss the old days of just radio, amps, antennas & SWR but gone are those days. GLad I was her from 1991 when it all really started.
It was fun all the years it lasted. It is mainly gay (as you said disgusting) stuff, but you see there was one or 2 guys mainly one that hated so much on guys that had amplifiers that since he could NOT do anything about it in the REAL WORLD, he decided he would just post smut here. And well it caught on. Kind of like yelling fire in a crowded movie house...

Hamtards took it over GA, just like your CB radio. A bunch of asswipes with callsigns (multiple choice no CW test) makes it easy for most anyone to get letters and numbers affixed to their name, doesn't make them good radio operators or NG participants.

Huh, fancy meeting you here Bob.;-) That's a killer pic. I definitely this spring want to get a rotor for my beam and the appropriate type of coax. I've been reading over the net about this "Penetrator" antenna. Do you know anything about it - is it all it's cracked up to be? Would a beam be better IYO?

That question reminds me of the film, Citizens Band. Those were the days when CB users knew how to deal with the idiots.

212. Mag light corrosion

Newsgroup: rec.radio.cb

From: Stormin Mormon <cayoung61spamblock##@hotmail.com>

I recently had a battery corrode in my black 4D cell Mag light. Old style bulb, if that's relevant.

The 4D mag light by my front door was dead. I managed to get the tail cap off (two big pipe wrenches) and find the bottom battery had corroded. Brand new battery, Endurance, from Advance Auto Parts. After considerable scrubbing and sanding, the light works again. I'm leaving it in peices over night to dry. Then load up with four Rayovac cells, and a shot of grease on the tail cap threads.

The 4D mag is my "grab and go" light, in case I need to go some where in a hurry.

It was only happy coincidence that I found the corroded battery. Might have been there for years, if I'd not needed the light for a bulb test.

Since that time, others have told me that batteries
corrode only in D cell mags, and typically the battery next to the tail cap. Has anyone else had this happen? Is it a common problem?

If you need to keep a bludgeon class light on hand,
at least get one of the LED retrofit bulbs (about twenty bucks w/tax and well worth it)

CY: Wallfart used to have the. I got a couple 3D mags with the LED bulb when Lowe's had them on sale for $15. I should have bought five or six of them.

Haven't had to relive that (used to be) common scenario in quite awhile, thanks to modern alternatives.

CY: Such as leak free batteries?

>The 4D mag is my "grab and go" light, in case I >need to go some where in a hurry.

I suggest you install a cup hook in the door frame to hang one of the Emissive Energy Inova XO3 lights from. It's not the cudgel the 4D is, but as bright if not brighter and the Li batteries outlast those old leaky "D's" by a substantial margin,
IOW; light when you need it, plus will fit in your pocket.

http://www.inovalight.com/x.html

CY: I'm sure that would be brighter.

>It was only happy coincidence that I found the >corroded battery. Might have been there for

Get the torch I suggested and consider the price as tuition so you don't have to endure a repeat during a worse case event that might be really serious.

CY: Ideally, I'll remember to check the light, now and again. I also put in Energizers, today. I've got other lights. The cup hook near the door is an excellent idea. I may do that.

more BS

>Has anyone else >had this happen? Is it a common problem?

Yes,
I've had people supply me with bullshit anecdotes,
if that's what you mean.

CY: Hmm. A couple ohter folks have reported corroded battery at the spring cap.

C'mon Chris,
you've been on the survival groups long enough to know better than rely on obsolete trinkets.
Pack up all those parts and send them over to Gummer <g>

CY: Of course. He could trade me for one of his thousand or so firearms. Excellent advice.

Unfortunately, its been that way across the entire rec.radio.*
hierarchy for the last several years.
most of the intelligent people have moved to other forms of getting their message out (blogging and such).

I tend to spend most of my time on RSS feeds so newsgroups are only a once-a-month lookover for me anymore. besides, since mostly the stupid people hang out here, they get to listen to themselves and start keyboard word wars (flamewars) and such. My suggestion, call it a day on newsgroups. they are now obsolete.

it is particularly bad here in the phoenix area. you have some of the channel 19 crowd that "dis" truckers for whatever reasons (I'd repeat the words, but then I'd have to wash my hands after wards). Some of them even run upwards of 2 kilowatts and more and don't care what they are doing to their neighbors equipment or the adjacent bands that other users might be using.

This mentality is not strictly limited to the 11 meter band either. we have it (in a much smaller fashion) in ham radio (and it exists in commercial radio and TV). It all goes to one simple problem: the stupid have a much higher reproduction rate than the intelligent do.

my suggestions (FWIW): consult a lawyer. asking anyone in here for a useful answer is about as useful as pounding a hole in water (and as you ahve already seen, some of the responses or necessarily stupid).

It's too late. Use the radio properly, don't invert the speech, don't tell or boast to anyone what model it is, and no-one at the other end will be any the wiser.

Even you have to admit this is still funny. You looney cocksucker.

Marky’s Renaissance Fair: (free-credit-report tune)

Marky was getting depressed 'cause of all the stress he was feeling at home.
Marky has a little cock and Gav would taunt him wherever he'd go.
Marky Thought he'd move to a place where he could have a tiny dick and Gav wouldn’t care.
He just wishes that Gav had told him that place was a Renaissance Fair!

VE7KFM dot com!

Tell your friends, tell Gav's dad, tell Gav’s mom!
Never mind they've been singing our songs
Since Mark showed up sucking Karol's dong!

If you're not into fake sword fights
Karol says Marky’s ass ain’t tight!
Take a tip from a knight who knows

VE7KFM dot com, Mark blows!

Hey Morkins, do you and Gavy sing this tune when that commerical comes on??

BWAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA !!!!!!!!!!!!!!

My CB walkies, a couple of them use 8 AA cells, and a couple have a dummy plug so I can run 10 NiCd.

Has anyone tried NiMH cells, instead of alkalines? Do they perform well?

Hello Christopher,

NiMH cells have relatively low voltage (1.2 Volts) as do NiCd. In that sense, you won't develop full power on an HT. Other than that, they have a better life than NiCads and by going to 10 rather than 8, you'll have the voltage available that 8 alkaline batteries give you. 8 alkaline give you 8 * 1.5 Volts, or 12 volts. 10 NiMH will give you 10 * 1.2 Volts, or the same voltage (12 Volts) as the 8 alkaline.

NiCD batteries are the same way; 10 * 1.2 volts = 12 Volts total.

That said, the NiMH cells will give you longer life than the NiCd batteries.

I don't believe they will ever produce lithium ion AA's at 1.5 volts.
A lithium ion battery in a common or non proprietary package like the AA package creates a dangerous situation. If one tries to charge it in a common or non proprietary charger it may blow up.

* They do make lithium ion AA cells at 3.6 volts

Yes, I know all that about the voltages. That's why I mentioned the spacer for 8 or 10 cells. The question is whether NiMH (which handle power surges reasonably well) work better than alkalines (which don't do as well with power surges such as transmitting)?

Rochester, NY is one of the few places you can ask for a white hot dog and people know what you mean. Where you go through the can of worms to get to work. And there is both a subway that goes no where, and a ferry that goes no where.

Lithium Ion as we know it is about 3.6V anyway.

Most types of Lithium cells are between 3V and 3.7V.

It's only the Lithium/Iron Disulfide type that's around 1.5V (actually about 1.7V to 1.8V when new).
And AFAIK there isn't a recharable equivalent.

I like Lithium batteries just for the convenience. They last a LOT longer than alkalines, and in fact I have some frequent-use devices with Lithiums that have not needed a battery change for almost half a decade. Some GMRS 1.5-watt walkie talkies, for example - I use them a bunch in the summer, and they just keep on ticking. Also in bicycle lights, etc. Well worth the price differential.

I wish they were readily available in C and D sizes.

Yes Mark, I am well aware that you're desperate for ANYBODY to agree with you.

However, the reasoning is not bogus. The reasoning is based on the well founded and time tested FACT that you are an idiot.

309. FRS battery packs or loose NiMH?

As to 3 AA packs, I'm finding between 600 and 1500 mA.
Ranging in price from $8 to $15 per pack. Depending on seller, amps, etc.

Loose AA cells can be up to 2650 mA. About the same price as AAA.

Which pack has the advantage? I'm thinking that for most users, the charge stand and drop in battery pack provides convenience. The loose cells, a more advanced user can save a few bucks. Would have to pop the batteries out each night for charging. So, would lose convenience. Loose cells allow the advanced user to pitch out a single cell that goes bad, opposed to pitch out the cell pack.

In either case, for field operations I'd want a spare change (or two) of batteries in my pocket. Perhaps in a small ziploc bag. Having a dead battery while working the floor in a retail store is inconvenient. During a field operation, it's a problem.

I have to say, I have not had this problem. I usually see the device begin to slow or dim or whatever it would normally do. It may be only a half an hour 'til electron death, but it is not instantaneous, and that's plenty of time for anything I use.

The upshot is that when a wireless mike using NiMH cells on live TV goes south, it screws up your TV show. That's reasonably relevant, I thought.

The transmitters have battery telegraphs. There is a bar graph on the receiver. Lithium batteries die quick. You have to change the batteries as soon as the bar graph starts to fall. Alkalines will give you another couple hours.

What show is it, Dave? A local show or something that gets some

The life of the battery is more or less fixed. That is, it's a consistent drain, and so life of a given battery line from fully charged is the same unit to unit. You can count on the life of the battery being a more or less constant number of hours.

Keep track of the hours on a battery, replace it at 2/3's of life.

I used all wireless mics on all my live radio, TV, and stage shows. Never a problem with mics due to battery life.

I did notice some wireless mics were intermittent, from time to time. Traced that to a poor battery fit. Returned from Energizers to Duracells or ProCells and the problem never returned.

Sennheiser says Duracell/Procell isn't putting enough electrolyte in their batteries lately and sometimes the paste compacts and makes intermittent contact inside the battery.

I'll use Lithium for an actual 3 hour show, but for rehearsals, when mics stay on stage for 4 or 5 hours sometimes, I prefer the alkalines, so I don't have to interrupt an act in the middle of their rehearsal.
The less the truck sees of me the better.

Our pro stuff (Sennheiser and Shure) tells us the state of the transmitter battery on the receiver front panel.

Since most CB walkie talkies take 8 alkaline or 10 Nicads, I Replace at 2/3 sounds useful. You wouldn't want to be out on a hike, and have your CB go dead.

What do you do with the 1/3 charged batteries? Hope you don't leave them out on in the woods, or desert or something.

No, not at all. They get pressed into other service requiring less instantaneous demand, until they're dead. Some alkalines can be recharged to 75% of new capacity. Those that can't are disposed of at recycling centers.

For the most part, I use NiMH cells in wireless devices. Replace at 2/3's charge service, and recharge.

LOL! NCIS, especially the Mark Harmon original series, is a great show - excellent characters, decent plots, good attitude towards military personnel.

As for me, I try - TRY, mind you - to like everyone, even when we disagree to some extent politically. I don't always succeed - people who refuse to actually think and prefer to mindlessly spout ideological sludge - whether liberal or conservative - drive me crazy.

You're pretty stupid if you don't charge rechargeable batteries in radio

Well, then, I guess I'll get a 50,000 watt transmitter, and

Would I use alkalines, or NiMH?

There was a CB-er, this is in the early 70's, in St Charles, Missouri, who used a highly modified Collins transmitter, with about 5kw output on the band. They called him "Echo" because he had a Echoplex on everything that he put into his rig. He transmitted music, sound effects. Harrassed truckers.

Charley came to town and that's all she wrote. I've got audio of him somewhere. Not pretty.

I had a walkie that would take alkalines or rechargeables.
Performance was the same when fully charged. But output was more uniform until death, lacking the slow decline of alkalines.

Rechargeable life was less than practical for long days in the field.

Whatever. Stupidity and persecution (this time in the form of Bill now you've brought it here. I have no idea why or how you have brought it on yourself, but please don't muck up good conversations. I suggest you find a way to shed these idiot who bother. There are ways.

I would suggest a better way - do three things:

1 - Change your online handle. Your call sign is a magnet for persecutors, and will be forever. A new handle will be a new persona as far as the interent and search engines are concerned.
2 - When you post, use complete sentences and good grammar. It makes a difference when putting off obnoxious people and exalting your own position.
3 - Completely, utterly keep your own house clean. If you take the perpetual high road, then every thing they say will be the low road, and it will be their oafishness that will show up as long as Google keeps the search engines on these groups alive. Never threaten, never challenge, and remain on-topic. Don't even respond to this post, or any post, unless it contains an viable topic in which have interest.

I wish you, and everybody, well - but as long as you are in the eye of the hurricane, fair or not, the burden of resolution falls on your shoulders.

I'm done.

73,
Bruce Jensen

try to folloew YOUR own rules before trying to push them onto someone else

honestly don't we have enough people trying to tell us what to do and what to say as it is when you post as you just have you feed the trolls what they wanted

YOU are as much or more of the problem than I thereby

A couple decades ago, about 1980, I think it was. I had a couple CB walkies, and tried using them on nicad AA cells.
The walkies were good for about an hour of chit chat. Not all that useful.

I had a walkie that would take alkalines or rechargeables.
Performance was the same when fully charged. But output was more uniform until death, lacking the slow decline of alkalines.

Rechargeable life was less than practical for long days in the field.

Well, not exactly. When I go off to the woods it's for the solitude, the quiet, and a little deep DXing.

Hunting is not really my style, unless food is otherwise in short supply. Which it can be in January in the North Woods.

I've only had to kill what I eat a couple of times.

And I don't think they'll ever let me in that WalMart, again.

Allow me to thank both of you for turning a nice ON-topic discussion into another OFF-topic sucker battle. You guys - collectively - are the death of a newsgroup.

This is SOP for Mark Morgan, KB9RQZ. Sooner or later he always gets around to making the conversation about himself.
Why? Because this self-centered societal reject gets no attention at home.

I've got a couple of cbs from the 70's.
One worked espceially well until a repair shop replaced the meter with a wrong one and stole the power transistor and put in a cheapie.
I have a new Ford and want a good or great cb and antenna that doesn't require holes in the new pretty sheet metal.
I don't anticipate in rattling on the mike all day just keeping up on road conditions wrecks etc.

Funny thing happened to KB9RQZ. Gav's dildo was buzzing away in Markie's extra large asshole when all of a sudden,,,"BAM".....Gav's massive 8 D cell dildo broke apart deep inside KB9RQZ. You see, as large of a dildo as it was, it still wasn't big enough to stretch the walls of Markie's high mileage ass.
So, the wildly vibrating 8 D cell dildo would bang and clang aganist the walls of Markie's man-puss.The dildo was constructed by one of the finest dildo makers in Canada. It was just too much abuse. Now it remains hidden deep inside Markie's shit pussy.

Want to look at wedding pics of kb9rqz & kd8ctl ?

I was one who walked away. The unintentionally hilarious appearance of "homeland security liaisons" at my club during the 2000s didn't impress me either.

As for the compromise mentioned here, it's slightly less intrusive, but a lot of damage has been done. We'll see what shakes out. Emergency communications is actually quite rewarding, and I miss being at least a small part of it.

The brainless "if you have nothing to hide, why do you care?" line of thinking disappoints me. My concerns over personal privacy was met with that exact response just a few years ago. Maybe now that the SCARY NEGRO ant1-CHrist Kenyan-born BLACK MARXIST rad1CAL socialist s00persekr3t Muslim terrorsymp Obama is President, at least the teabaggers in ham radio will return to my side on this issue. Stopped clock being right twice a day and so on.

STAINS ON YOUR PILLOW*******

You don't remember me, but I remember you.
I'm that seventeen year old, who tore your ass in two

My cock is not a gadget, your ass is not a toy, your dam asshole is so streached out because my name is LeRoy!

If I could start anew, I'd only masturbate. You made me fuck your ass,
Mark you're a reprobate!

Stains on your pillow, jizz in your ass, because of you.

Hello SM, nothing at all wrong with a portable man, good to go. I still run an hr2510 in my work truck that I'm borrowing from a guy on this group. (no names please)

Works great after it's warmed up a couple minutes. Which state are you in btw, SM?

I think I'll send this one into snopes.com for verification.
However, I wouldn't be to surprised if Ohio had passed such a law.
There was another jerk a couple of years ago that was mouthing off about some law in title 49, which covers the trucking industry. Only problem is, the number used was one of those that had been repealed.

First of all, Every manufactured electronic device has a little sticker on it that says "This device must accept any and all interference".

Furthermore, it is highly unlike that any ham radio unit would cause such interference to a 900mhz cordless phone. As the frequency increases, it becomes more difficult to send a signal with the same power. Not to mention that most manufacturers include various filters to keep those signals out of the equation.

As for CBers interfering with cordless phones, if one ever does, I'll be sure not to buy that brand of phone.

Do you have a wireless keyboard? Like one from logitech? Look at that little sticker on the back. 27mhz. Guess what? Hello. That's in the CB band. They use a channel that is set aside for "Remote Control" (RC). So your neighbor's kid little RC car could be on the same frequency and you wonder why the keyboard is screwed up. So this alleged law could also effect any RC device as well as common computer devices.

Can we just end this with HORSEHOCKEY!

What is amazing though is, this is an actual law!
http://codes.ohio.gov/orc/2909.04

However, this does not mean that a ham radio operator could be charged for doing so while transmitting a signal. It does mean that a person who deliberately causes disruption to public services, with something like an explosive device, most certainly will be.

As usual, you have twisted and mis-stated the facts, and blown everything completely out of proportion in order to make this Ohio law "fit" your persecution complex.

It is clearly stated right in the first paragraph (A) of the law that it only applies to individuals who DELIBERATELY and KNOWINGLY, (i.e. with criminal intent), interfere with emergency communications systems, broadcast stations or the like - either by on-air "jammimng", or by causing physical damage or vandalism to emergency or public communications infrastructure.

The law is in the category of crimes concerning ARSON.
The wording was twisted to make it appear that transmission of radio signals causing harm is a criminal offense. That is NOT what the law says at all.

29009.4(A) merely defines what is meant by "emergency public service".
Which includes ham radio and even CB radio. Both of which can be used in emergency situations.

I've tested a ton of antennas and the one I keep coming back to is a Hamstick made by Lakeview.

It's about 7' tall and I don't think he makes them for CB so I use a 10 meter and lengthen the whip until I see a flat SWR.

There's a lot of copies on the market but the real Lakeview Hamstick seems to be the best performer of all.

Only handles about 400w but out performs my Wilson 5000 with the 667 on it.

I use a 4-magnet mount and have no problems,

So, given your public service intent, here, and, myself, questioning the efficacy of changing a public ordinance by wailing in a USENet newsgroup, I have to ask: have you taken more definitive steps to get this addressed? Like notifying the ARRL. They most certainly would have something to say about it. Or FCC? FCC has dominion over communications issues, and has ruled specifically on the issues of interference, antenna installation, and the HOA CC&R's limiting of TV, and satellite antennae installation.

Have you taken your complaints there?

Or are you just flailing against 'the man.'

Make no mistake, I'm fully aware of the war on radio hobbycraft in this country.

But screaming 'fire' in a crowded NRA convention may not be the better way to accomplish your goal.

Agreed - and moreover - does it make sense to air these views on a FRS newsgroup? The connection is tentative at best.

This radioguy is a DUFUS, and has a long history of reading a ton of BS into local Statutes that have to do with Radio Communications.... I, and MANY others, have refuted his BS, but he continues to froth off at the mouth, about things he really just doesn't understand.... Being a former FCC Field Agent, I still have a lot of insight, and even a few friends at the Commission, and 99% of his conclusions are bogus from the get go.
Just put him in your PLONK File, and ignore him.....

Me one who has a 40 year history in the Radio Field, in many areas

As a former Field Agent, can you help us understand how one might have their ticket revoked due to character issues?

Sure, In the Commissions Rules and Regulations (Title 47) there are Rules that state that to be Eligible to Hold a Radio License in the USA, one must be of "Good Character". The definition includes such things as not being convicted of a Felony Crime while using Radio Communications, Not being convicted of a Felony Crime of Violence, Not being convicted of Wire Fraud, or a number of other lesser Crimes. If you have ever had a License Revoked, for ANY Reason. Violation of the Secrecy Clause of the Communications Act of 1934, as Amended. (although I have never heard of a prosecution for this). If you have been issued a Violation Notice and not Responded, and it went to a Hearing, and Revocation was part of the Judgement. I heard of a fellow that owned a small local Radio Station, that was issued a Violation Notice for Tower Lights not operating properly, He choose to not respond to the notice, and when the Field Agent "Pink Slipped" the Transmitter, and took it off the air, he removed the seal on the Power Switch, and went back on the air after the Agent left the site. The Agent came back the next day with a Federal Marshal, and they put the guy in the Slam, and revoked the Station License for that station and start proceedings to revoke his Class A Citizens Band License, Ham License, and Land Mobile Licenses, under these rules, as not being of "Good Character"... The Administrative Law Judge wasn't impressed with his Court appearance, and granted the Commissions Revocation requests on all counts. He did time for the Tower thing, and lost everything....

Just a note here: FCC Field Agents do NOT have Police Powers, on Land or Sea... but they can, and do, have the ability to get a Federal Marshal for Land, and a USCG Officer for Sea, to enforce the FCC Rules and Statutes if that is the only recourse. When doing Vessel Inspections for SOLAS Compliance, I have had to get a USCG Officer to make a Violation Notice stick, on a couple of occasions, and had to get a Federal Marshal a couple of times, for Interference with Safety Communications Issues by stations on Land. One of those was for a Cable outfit with a VERY Leaky System, that was taking out the local Cops Repeater, the USCG local Marine CH16 Vhf Receiver, AND the local Airports Approach Frequency, all at the same time. That was a GIANT MESS....

Me Memories from time gone by....

I know what you mean. I saw on city tv, ctv, or chch news ontario is prohibiting using cn and ham radio equipment while mobile ubness you're using a hands free device and is also preventing having anything with a viewscreen on it while driving unless the viewscreen is capable of displaying ONLY safety information and nothing else.

What the citty tv,ctv.chch news did not say is

1. a hands free device on a cb or ham radio is illegal, especially mobile as that is automatically illegally transmitting when you are not talking to anyone and the cox picks up the external noise.

especially picking it up constantly. which is what happens when you have a vox on the entire time you're mobile.

2. The viewscreen law. Not only does that make my cellphone illegal to use in the car even with a hands free device since it has a viewscreen on it, it also makes a vehicle safety device I have to get illegal since it requires a viewscreen to be in sight of the driver to be safe otherwise it negates the safety feature it is designed for if the drivver can't see the viewscreen.

And of course, it isn't capable of displaying only the safety feature.
The FM capture effect sees to that. If you believe what the majority of people posted about the fm capture effect, then it will pick up only the strongest signal whatever that might be wherever you're at.

But because of the way land is around the municipality where I live, the neighbors almost running over other people here and vice versa, I have to get the vehicle safety device in order for other people to be safe.

It figures Ontario would outlaw these vehicle safety devices.

And it's my understanding some states in the U.S. have also outlawed these vehicle safety devices in the name of "safety" by making the roads "more safe" by outlawing vehicle safety devices.

It's probably a bunch of rednecks whichever state they're in who has done so.

Uninformed jibberish snipped

They are talking about cloning radios on trunked networks
The problem a cloned radio causes is that if it is using the same ID as another radio it will log onto the system, the system can not allow two radios with the same ID in so the problem is that when a Police radio is turned on but it's ID is already logged on the radio will not be allowed access to the trunked network

The cloned radio that is logged in means it also is able to transmit on the network, the only way to remove the offending radio is to block that ID, but this means that they need to reprogram their radio with that ID to give it a new ID

Trunking scanners do not need to log into the system to follow signals across the network so do not cause any problems

Please do some research before posting silly comments

And the reason Police are pulling you over all the time has nothing to do with there being an antenna mounted on your vehicle

So how does problems with unauthorized transmitters justify outlawing receivers? And isn't it already illegal for civilians to transmit on frequencies assigned to police, per FCC regulations?

What use is assigned to the frequency band in question, anyway?

>Listening to the information on a certified police scanner is

There's a difference between transmitters and receivers. Duh!
Are there any consumer devices which are receivers only but it's easy to modify them into transmitters as well? I doubt it.

If you want to outlaw transmitters on a particular band, that's got nothing to do with receivers.

The bill does not outlaw receivers or scanners used by individuals. Don't depend on the accuracy of anything "radioguy" posts in these newsgroups, as he consistently distorts and misinterprets existing and proposed radio-related regulations and legislation to make himself look like a "victim".

Better to go straight to the source, such as:

http://scannerfood.com/news/HB5194.htm

There IS a provision in the law seeking to prohibit re-broadcasting police communications on the internet via streaming audio - but that is under debate in the legislature.

Read my post as to what they are trying to stop it has to do with cloning trunking radios which transmit to access the system so that it can follow the system as it switches freqs and lockout the radio who's ID has been cloned

Under what provision? The only exceptions to the use, U.S. Government radiolocation (primary) and Amateur use (secondary), inside the United States are:

1) Certain land mobile uses in Detroit, MI, Cleveland, OH, and Buffalo, NY,
and

2) North of "Line A" (defined at 47 CFR 97.3(a)(26) - roughly paralleling the U.S/Canadian border 50 miles distant).

Amateur operation in 420-430MHz south of "Line A" may continue as long as it doesn't cause harmful interference to the above mobile users. I don't see Illinois as among those users.

From:
http://ecfr.gpoaccess.gov/cgi/t/text/text-idx?type=simple;c=ecfr;cc=ecfr;sid=1e65c7a198eb7d479ac3083fc924244e;idno=47;region=DIV1;q1=90.273;rgn=div6;view=text;node=47%3A5.0.1.1.3.1.10
(As of today's date)

"[47 CFR] § 90.273 Availability and use of frequencies in the 421-430 MHz band.
"The frequency bands 422.1875-425.4875 MHz and 427.1875-429.9875 MHz are available for use in the Detroit, Michigan and Cleveland, Ohio areas. The bands 423.8125-425.4875 MHz and 428.8125-429.9875 MHz are available for use in the Buffalo, New York area. Sections 90.273 through 90.281 address the specific rules applicable to these bands. Use of these bands is also subject to the general technical standards and application procedures contained in other subparts of part 90. The technical standards applicable in this band are the same as those contained in subpart I of part 90 for the 450-470 MHz band. Private land mobile use of these frequencies is subject to accepting any interference from Federal Government radiolocation operations.

"(c) [For purposes of computing the distance radii:]
Buffalo, NY 42°52'52.2" North latitude.78°52'20.1" West longitude.
Cleveland, OH 41°29'51.2" North latitude.81°41'49.5" West longitude.
Detroit, MI 42°19'48.1" North latitude.83°02'56.7" West longitude."

I see nothing that permits land mobile [radio] use by the State of Illinois or any political subdivision thereof in the 420-430MHz range.

That is what I was wondering, I'm sure that band's primary user is the U.S. military and Amateur radio users are secondary users. I'm sure it is against several laws for any police agency to interfere with our military. The Air Force has been active in protecting their part of the 70 cm band in two places in the US.

the tv news said that if a cop or resident calls an emergency number on their home phone or cell phone and can't get through because there is rfi by someone transmitting on a radio or someone else talking on the same frequency the person or cop's phone is using. they can be arrested under this law for interfering with emergency communicatiomns.

Now that sure sounds like they're talking about rfi.

If it's only means people using explosive device to blow up a cop's cell phone or resident's cell phone, how is that person going to be able to dial it when it's in pieces and why would they be expecting an answer in such a case?

It definitely means rfi.

So in Ohio, a ham can no longer legally use the 900 mhz ham, 2.4 ghz or 5.8 ghz bands even though federal law says you can, because someone miight try to dial emergency services and only hear the 900 mhz ham repeaters when they call or the ham on the input frequncy or simplex.

Furthermore, the news said any rfi.

Again the news specificically mentioned "radio frequency interference".

Which means even if the ham is operatung 2 meters, 70 centimeters or hf bands and the residents' phone or cop's phone is overloaded from no sheilding, the ham is the guilty party guilty of committing an illegal act while the part 15 drvices without any shielding are ptotected by laweven though federal law says the exact opposire of the state law.

And no, they did not say cb and ham are protected. They're only protected if a cop or resident is using the cb or ham radio to make an emergency call and someone inteferes with it.

I have a very well made radio tower with a I MAX 2000 antenna, antenna was made when they made the good version of it, I do not use it anymore and am moving to another location. It is 98 feet from the ground to the top of the antenna.Someone would have to take it down and I will take serious offers on it. I would hope someone in my area would be the one to buy it. I am in NEWNAN, GA.
E mail me at this address if interested,
DCLIFF1015@webtv.net
Thank you.

It sounds to me like you live in a gated community - like a prison. When does your sentence end, anyway?

If you're not in prison, you might as well be.

I'm the third generation of my family to own this house, and I love it.
I grew up here, and I have a lifetime of fond memories. It is mortgage-free. But if I lived in the type of area you describe I'd move in a heartbeat, even if I had to leave everything but the clothes on my back behind. I might even do it if I had to go naked.

This isn't about OTA TV reception. In the overall scheme of things, that's unimportant. It's about all that other crap.

Get out as soon as the warden lets you go.

Yes, the FCC fact sheet for the OTARD rule states that "The rule does not apply to television antennas used to receive a distant signal."

Then cable subscribers are paying for a service that isn't being delivered.
They should complain to the local franching and consumer agencies as well as the FCC, unless the issue is with local wiring in the home/residence.

The stations presumably weren't distant when they were analog The rules exclude larger antennas for receiving distant signals, That term, distant signal, is apparently the FCC regulatory term of art here and was developed to describe a signal normally imported by cable systems via means other than over the air reception.

http://www.museum.tv/eotvsection.php?entrycode=distantsigna

http://www.nielsenmedia.com/glossary/terms/D/index.htm

It seems to me if the local cable system can get the signal with a standard over the air antenna mounted on a high enough mast, that would not be a distant signal.

If your homeowner's association won't budge, then it may be necessary to petition the FCC to make a determination and enforce their rules if they determine those stations are not distant signals. But that won't help you with the next question about a shared community antenna, only with an individual antenna on a mast located in an area you control.

A shared community antenna is likely out of the question unless the homeowner's association agrees because the wiring and other parts of it would likley be installed in areas they control and individual residents don't.

Are you REALLY such and Idiot, that you think your interpretation of the Statute is the way it is... what a Morooon... Bugs Bunny Definition...

the simple FACT is that any unlicensed Part 15 Transmitters and Receivers MUST NOT interfere, and MUST accept Interference for any Licensed Transmitters in the same Band, PERIOD. That is Federal Statue as part of Title 47... This supersedes ANY State or Local Restriction or Statute, that some Yahoo local Politico thinks would be nice to pass. All one would have to do when the case came before a Judge, IF it EVER Went That Far, would be to trout out the Title 47 Statute and the Judge would dismiss the Case Post Haste....

I just read in another newsgroup a post by a persn who lives in a hoa
He can not put up an antenna for broadcast reception even though federal law says hoas can not prevent people from putting up antennas.

the way the hoa got around the dederal law is by outlawing him and everyone from putting up any antenna masts at all..

Since they outlawed the antenna masts and not the antennas, as far as the hoa is concerned, they'tre not breaking any of the federal laws about them not being allowed to ban people from putting up tv antennas.

639. BBC TV feature on CB - wanting CB enthusiasts to take part.

I have been contacted by a TV company, working for the BBC, wanting to be put in contact with users of CB radio. They are wanting to do a short feature on CB radio, and want people to take part.
They want us to pass on the following invitation:

“Are you a CB Radio enthusiast based in or near London, would you like to be interviewed in a short film for BBC1s The One Show about your passion for CB? Did you first meet your loved one over the airwaves? If so, please contact Cris Warren from Icon Films, 0117 317 1717 / cris.w@iconfilms.co.uk for a chat about possibly appearing in our film which we will be shooting on May 6th 2010."

The last time such a feature was done on UK CB was in the 1990s, when they filmed at an "Eyeball" near Chesterfield (Derbyshire).
The BBC budget does not stretch to travelling (at least not for those actually making programmes), so it falls to Londoners to put CB on UK TV again.
Anyone interested should make contact as above.

no, I do not live in a gated community. I don't even live in a hoa although there are a couple around here and we do have a nosy nimby neighbor who also dows not live in a hoa, but now the municipality is trying to get us to put CC&Rs which run with the land forever onto our non-hoa non-CC&r property whicv we moved into decades before any hoas complexes were built around here.

and decades beefore any places having CC&rs were built around here.

Bullshit. IF, as you say, you are constantly being stopped, questioned or otherwise harrased by the police, it is undoubtedly because either by reputation or behavior, you have given them reason to believe that you are a whackjob who is potentially a danger to yourself, or your community.

In 35 years of amateur radio mobile and portable operations, in almost all 50 states; in dozens and dozens of towns, cities and villages, I have NEVER been stopped, questioned, detained or otherwise bothered by any law enforcement agency - even when driving vehicles literally festooned with antennas. With one exception, no cop has ever given me a second look, even when I have operated portable H/Ts in public locations and events right in front of them.

The one and only time a cop ever showed the slightest interest in one of my radios, it turned out that he was a fellow ham. He was thinking of buying the same model H/T I was using, and wanted to know how much I had paid for mine.

With your rambling, incoherent posts, you're only convincing people that you are not playing with a full deck. Nobody believes a thing you say - why do you bother?

You don't have a clue - not one, single clue. NO municipality anywhere can "force" a covenant onto a property that does not already have one.

A restrictive covenant is an addendum TO A DEED, and a deed can ONLY be changed if, and when, a property is sold or transferred to a new owner.

Barring a sale or transfer, no change or addition to an existing deed can be imposed by any municipality or court, period.

The only thing a court MIGHT do, is to rule that an existing covenant is invalid or unenforceable, which is the case regarding deed covenants which were once very common 50+ years ago - covenants which prohibited a property owner from selling their home to anyone not of the caucasian race. Though such racially-based restrictive covenants may still exist in the deeds of very old homes, they are null and void under current law.

why aren't the police out catching some real criminals? Trust me, the police have no vlue to radio,tv, or electronics. I and several other people have consistently been pulled over and/or stopped and/or arrested by police stating phony radio laws they had/have no idea about.

Such as all CB radios are illegal for American citizens to possess unless they have an amateur radio licencse which specifiically permits amateur radio operations on the standard 40 CB channels.

By stating that I must follow that law and ordering me to do so, and telling me I would be arrested and piut in jail if I didn't, the police officer ordered me to commit a federal crime.

They also told me it was against the law for me to have an Ic-R3 radio. Because they are police radios the police talk to each other on.

By doing so, the police officer just admitted that he and the whole police department are guilty of breaking federal law.

I was told it was against the law to have a shortwave broadcast band converter/reciever in my car.

It only picked up the shortwave broadcast bands, nothing else, and not even all of them. It could only pick up the stations like BBC, Radio France, Radio Nederlands, etcetera, not even ham radio.

I and other people have heard the police and fire departments using frs and gmrs for their dispatch and other operations.

And if a citizen l(who is unaware the police uses it) listens for a minute on the channel, hears no one and transmits they are arrested and jailed for "transmitting on a police channel" even though it is no such thing.

And if they try to get out of it, the police will say it is a private police channel the citizen was illegally transmitting on because the police bought it and it even said right on the package "private line" which proves that it is a private channel and sincxe it is a private channel, no one else should be on it.

So as you can see, the police have no idea what the radio laws, rules, and regulations are even though they try to enforce them by trying to enforce non-existent laws, rules, and regulations.

Amd the written fcc rules don't helpm uch either since even English grammar teachers agree the way the fcc rules are written say that all CB radios are illegal for American citizens to possess.

What the FCC needs to do is reword the passage stating police have authority over illegal cb radios in a way where the polive won't think all cb radios are illegal and where the police understand that they do NOT have authority over legal cb radios.

Then again, even if teh FCC does that, it still won't help much since as you can see from all of the above, the police are intent on enforcing non-existent laws, rules, and regulations which don't, didn't, and never did exist anywhere at all in the first place.

And no, I was not speeding when any of it happened. One time I was driving. (the shortwave radio), the other time I was on foot (the scanner) and the other time I was parked in the legal parking spot in a park during legal operational hourss during the day for less than two minutes.

I did not even have time to get out of my car berfore teh officer came zooming up to arrest me simply because he saw ONE antenna on my car which was a legal CB magmount antenna.

Well the reason you want to prevent any of these local or State RFI laws to be passed is because to not be cited by the law you must either go to court to have the court rule the law null and void or wait until cited and hire an attorney to defend you. If the local judge doesn't see it your way then you have to appeal to a higher court and the lawyer fees for those kind of appeals start at about $25,000.

A lot of people think you can just waltz into court and get a law voided, but in reality it will take more action because all the State has to do is argue that their law is legal and get the local elected judge, who received donations from the local HOA's for reelection, to agree.

wrong again. The police there have interpreted the law in exactly the way I said they would interpret it, which is what I was warning against, and 100 percent of the people posting here said the police there would not interpret it in that way.

The intention of the law is exactly what I said it was. Because what all the other posters here said the intention was did not make any sense whatsoever given the text of the law.

The police interpreted the law exactly as the law's intentions were meant to be interpreted.

It might be an illegal law, but what I warned against has happened using that law.

"it has happened using THAT LAW"

Wrong. The example you cited avove happened OVER 14 YEARS AGO. The law in question) was just recently passed. The example you gave has absolutely nothing whatsoever to do with the current law.

I'm not saying that someday, somewhere, an incompetent, power-hungry, overzealous cop or prosecutor might not attempt to misuse/misapply the latest law in Ohio or Illinois to go after someone who is innocent of any wrongdoing. Such judicial misconduct has happened before, and will no doubt happen again. But as always, you have distorted and overblown the situation.

By trying to connect an incident from 1996 to present day legislation, you only (one again) make yourself look like a complete fool. You destroy your own credibility every time you do this, which calls into question the validity of ALL your opinions.

You damage your own case by your own words, time and time again.

Yeah if I remember correctly the ar-3500 came in 2 modiles. (1) was a 30 watt version and the other was a 100 watt version.

676. Just got a pair of Lafayette HA 73 radios and now I'm looking for documentation

Like the title says, I was recently given a pair of Lafayette HA 73 handheld CB radios. These are two channel radios and judging from the circuit design and components (and the QC sticker dated 1972), they were made some time in the early 1970s. That's about all I know about them, aside from the obvious stuff I can tell by looking at them, such as the fact that they are (of course) crystal controlled, and built like tanks. I suspect that they put out less then a watt, but I don't have a watt meter so I don't know for sure. I've been trying to find some documentation on them, but there doesn't seem to be any manuals scanned and put online. I was wondering if anybody reading this might have manuals or schematics, or know where I might find them. Thanks for reading.

Try the headphone or external speaker jack. Put a insulated probe into the jack/s and see if moving the internal contacts of the jack will have any effect on the speaker.

Now that is a blast from the past.... Enjoyed all the antenna and SWR stuff we used to talk about in the 90's. Especially all the tests you did on certain mobile antennas. Boy the good ole days.... when we talked and argued CB ONLY!!!

Yeah, Vista finally came back to life after the last update. Programs that had been deleted (and even manually removed!) somehow reappeared and my boot time changed for almost 5 minutes down to 7 seconds to log-in and another 7 seconds to desktop! So I've my groups back LOL. I've been using Ubuntu Linux, a great OS - but hadn't been able to get groups going on it.

Sigh, you are correct. Many rec.radio groups became a cesspool long ago. Hope springs eternal ;)

Only place in the world with white hots. Where "waking up with the wease" doesn't mean you have a cold. Where the ferry doesn't float, the aqueduct doesn't contain water and the subway doesn't contain rail cars any more. And the Frontier Field isn't on the frontier, but in a rather old section of town. And a can of worms is a dangerous way to get to work.

I live in the Rochester, NY suburbs, and I know these places in person.

Hello 'stormin',

Yep, I grew up in Pittsford. And those Zwigles white hots are good, but try the Wegman's white hots. Simply delicious!

The can of worms was undone decades ago. Of course, there are many new bottlenecks. What has it been? Six years that 490 has been messed up? First the rework on the bridges (one of 'em shifted, remember?). Then about 4 years reworking the expressway. Now the inner loop is all messed up. Taxes? Folks should move here for a year. They'd leave in a big hurry! Property taxes of 10,000 to 12,000 per year are not all that rare. And you don't need a real expensive piece of property to pay those rates. Property taxes (town plus county) often add up to 3% of the value of the property. Heck, finance rates aren't a whole lot more than that. Pay a mortgage forever!

Figured we were no longer talking Navajos.

Anyhow, yeah, the can was supposed to been cleared up. I remember 490 shifting in the city, can't remember which bridge. They put all the lanes on one bridge, and then on the other. Over the Genesee river, was it?

I've not tried the Wegmans whites, though they should be good. Everything Wegmans, is fine quality, and reasonably priced. I love the new micro mini shopping buggies, for when I only need a couple items.

You tried Mark's pizza? I rather enjoy that brand. I've met the Mark who founded the place. Nice enough fellow.

I, Woger, the bane and scourge of Lloyd Davies, wish to thank my mother for the house I live in.
Were it not for my adoptive mother I would not have inherited this castle and the curtains behind which I hide.
Thank You, Mother for all you have left me.
If it weren't for you I would be living in a small apartment next to Lloyd.

Is anybody out there still using or collecting old Lafayette Comstat 19's? I always liked that radio & I have a few of them in my collection & was wondering if there were other people who liked them as well.

Hello Jim, radio shack used to make good radios back in the day eh? Err perhaps they didn't make them but those 'nav-ho's were good rigs available right behind the glass case, right where they keep the cell phones today.

I liked the Lafayette and Olson stores more.

Now that is a blast from the past.... Enjoyed all the antenna and SWR stuff we used to talk about in the 90's. Especially all the tests you did on certain mobile antennas. Boy the good ole days.... when we talked and argued CB ONLY!!!

I dug this out:

I have just completed another test of mobile antennas. Last time I posted the results of the 7' Firestik compared to the 108" whip.
The Firestik won by a small margin. This time six antennas were tested. They were kept anonymous to the signal readers until after the figures were compiled. Each antenna was assigned a letter. Here's the list:

108" stainless steel whip A 8' Francis Amazer B
7' Firestik C
6'6" Hustler top load D
5'4" X-Terminator double coil E
9' homemade 1" braid antenna F

A picture of these antennas and the mount is located in (alt.binaries.pictures).
The file is called (antennas.jpg)
* The braided antenna is not shown.
It was included in the test after the picture was taken.

The conditions of this test follow:

1. All connected to Hustler Quick disconnects
2. All used at 1.5 : 1 match or better
3. All tested with a constant tone, constant power transmitter
4. All used on a three magnet mount on the roof of a truck
5. All tested from a parked vehicle that never moved during the test
6. All tested within a very brief time period of each other (15 sec.)
7. All used two stationary receivers 14 miles away.

The analog S meter of a Kenwood and Tentec were used to compile these numbers. These numbers were averaged after numerous checks and rechecks to make sure the order of best to worst was accurate. Here they are:

Tentec: F, 3.1 s units
E, 3.05
A, 3
B, 2.85
D, 2.7
C, 2.65

Kenwood: F, 2.3 s units
E&B tied at 2.2

D-C tied at 2.15
A, 2.1

Two things come to mind.
1. All these antennas are close.
2. Antenna E, easily the shortest, outperformed or equaled everything except antenna * F

* (antenna F is an impractical antenna. It consist of a one inch wire braid covering a fiberglass rod 9' tall)

Comments welcome.

in tennessee they give you plates which say "emergency" when you appluu for ham plates.

But having legal license plates issued to him by his home state of Ohio was part of the reason Joseph LaVey was arrested by thee cops in north carolina since the cops said his legal plates issued to him by the dmv are fake.

Maybe instead of getting and having ham plates, he should have had these plates his home state of ohio issues to regular people (the general public) to anyone who wants them just because they want them.

http://www.bmv.ohio.gov/sp_ohio_cops.stm

then just maybe he might not have been arrested.

He is 60ish thats for sure. Cite any ordinances or laws for what these sexual sign predators are violating?

Son, by no stretch of the imagination would anyone who has read your long, rambling whacked-out posts describe you as being "normal".

But, by all means do go - and the sooner the better. You are one of the biggest trolls here - you're a fine one to be accusing anyone else of trolling.

Thanks tnom for the review, seems like ranger got better feedback when they were made by clear channel. I picked one up and won't have it in hand till' tuesday, I'm looking forward to it trying it out. It's bound for my motorhome and I hope it's on freq. and not scared up to bad.

The AR-3500 was never related to the later Rangers. The AR was made in Japan. Here's the history:

It was twenty years ago today,
Marky Morgan forced the boys to be gay
He's been going in and outa their rears
And he's made them into ravin' queers.
So watch out or I'll force on you
The act we've hated all these years,
Marky Morgan's Greyhound Men's Room Band.

We're Marky Morgan's Greyhound Men's Room Band, Disciples of the Bucktoothed Choad,
Marky Morgan's Greyhound Men's Room Band,
Sit back and watch us shoot a load.
Marky Morgan's Greyhound, Marky Morgan's Greyhound,
Marky Morgan's Greyhound Men's Room Band.
It's wonderful to be here,
But Morgan's full of crap,
The dirty goddamn pederast:
That fucker gave us syphilis,
That fucker gave us clap.

I don't really want to stop the show,
But I thought you had all better know,
That Morgan's going to play a song,
On a stickpin that he stuck through his schlong.
So let me introduce to you
The one and only Bucktoothed Choad
And Marky Morgan's Greyhound Men's Room Band.

How can it be possible, considerating how simple the Amateur Radio exams of today are, KB9RQZ & KD8CTL can't pass the dumbed down extra ?

Can the two of them really be that stupid?

They both must be stupid. Stupid indeed !

Hello Steve:
you may want to get in touch with KB9RQZ or KD8CTL or both.

Not only do they love tasting body fluid of all types, they're also into solid waste.

You can find Mark (KB9RQZ) most days here in "Rec.Radio.Amateur.Policy" or here:
http://nimbusters.org/hams/forum.php?board=1

Or just google "KB9RQZ".

Good Luck In TeH Contest !

Day before yesterday I got a job, servicing an air conditioner, on the roof of a store. I had to rope up several tools and such. Brought along two FRS walkies. One for me, and one for my helper. That saved a lot of confusion. From the roof, it's not possible to see the ground next to the building. And certainly not possible to shout over and be heard.

Saved a lot of labor, for sure.

Last week I picked up a '73 D200 Club Cab, 400/727/D60 (4.10). And lots of rust, of course. Jillions of things to do on it, mostly electrical cause it was used to drag a 5th wheel. But while messing around I tried my test CB and got several pounds of noise. Changes pitch with engine RPM. Don't know if it's the ignition module or the external regulator. What has your experience with mopars taught you? Scrap the retro-regulator and go with a GM/Ford alternator? I'm installing a 130A 3G in the F-250 so I have a headstart on that one. Or shield the ignition harness and plug wires? Or something else?

Replace plugs, cap, rotor, wires, points & condenser. Use resistor wires.

Ham installations have federal pre - emption over any regulations that hoa's, town or city governments, states, or anyone else can pass. the simple solution for these people is to get a ham license, even a technician license, which any 10 year old kid could get if he studied for a week, and join the ARRL. Put up your ham antenna, or scanner antenna, whatever you want to, and when they start giving you crap about it, call the arrl, and tell them all about it.
then, sit back and see how they like getting fined 500 dollars a day for interfering with a government emergency installation ! the FCC will come down on them like a ton of bricks.... It really doesnt matter what the antenna you put up is FOR, since if you SAY it's a ham antenna, it falls under these protections. Endlessly bitching about it on these news groups is not going to solve your problems. Remember this: ANY effort on their part to prevent you from operating, putting up an antenna, ect, is going to be a regrettable experience for them... One they will remember for the rest of their miserable, controlling lives...

I believe that the amateur radio antenna preemption applies to regulations by government entities only (zoning laws, etc.) and not to regulations by private entities (HOAs). This is in contrast to the television antenna preemption which applies to both of the above categories.

"Yes, I'm Gay"
(sung to the tune of "Yesterday")
(Rusty Volvo / Paul McCartney / John Lennon)

Yes I'm Gay, my toobe with handles will soon broadcast away,
And tell the world my discovery for today,
Oh, I decree that Yes I'm Gay.

Homosexuality, now I know it's just the thing for me,
A weathered fencepost taught me who I need to be,
Oh, homosexuality came painfully.

Why I didn't know,
I don't know, I couldn't say.
Why it took so long,
To find out that Yes I'm Gay.

Yes I'm Gay, no more Sophie for me to lay,
Tell your big tit daughters to go away,
Oh, I decree that Yes I'm Gay.

How many men I'll blow,
I don't know, I couldn't say.
There's a database on QRZ,
I dooo believe I'll start today.

Yes I'm Gay, from a hamfest booth I will earn my pay,
In my hovel, I won't need to hide away,
Oh, I decree that Yes I'm Gay.

Mm-mm-mm-mm-mm-mm-mm.

Imagine
(UF / R. Xemblinosky / J. Lennon)

Imagine Marky Morgoon
It's not so hard to do

Kneeling in the boys' room
Slurping down some spoo
Imagine all the Cub Scouts
He has done this to!

Imagine Houghton County
A breeding ground for hicks
When they hear how Marky Gets his seedy kicks
Imagining Marky Morgoon
Gumming winos' dicks!

Imagine Copper Country Contagious miner's lung
No more ore to shovel
So Marky gets by with his tongue
Imagine him paying rent
With free shots at his bung!

We all know Morgoon is a reamer
But he's useful just the same
Where else would Brian find a patsy Half as sad or half as lame?

So you spend half of your time whining about off-topic posts, and the other half of your time posting off-topic...

That is funny IMO.

Excuse me, racist/sexist troll, but yoBama wants amnesty for illegal immigrants and he wants open borders. yoBama is fighting hard against any state law trying to penalize illegal immigrants.

I figured blacks would not like that idea, since illegal immigrants take their jobs. What is yoBama thinking? Or are you just so happy that yoBama is black, he can do no wrong?

Sometimes it isn t easy being a non Native English speaker in an English speaking forum!

RFI from the fuel pump? In a '73?

Actually I think I have it pinned down to the ignition. Figured it out by disconnecting the regulator and battery splitter box, then running the engine off the battery.

But you do have a point. I just rebuilt the carb today and took it out for a spin around the block. Can't hear much else but the motor (dual exhaust, no cats, no cab insulation, weatherstripping shot, rust holes in the floorboard, etc.). So I got a bit more work to do before I worry about running the radio while driving.

That, and WA State just passed a cell-phone law making any hand-held phone a primary offense. So I'm waiting to see how that's going to play out with CB and other mic-operated 2-way users. I have a feeling it's going be challenged in a high court..... but not by me!

Oh, and it turns out that this 400 has a 413 crank! I guess I'm gonna hafta start looking for a 4bbl manifold, too.

Thats not a cb. It's an Amateur Radio.
It's aganist the law to use that radio on 11 meters.
Don't let N8WWM find out you're thinking of getting one.

I think I'll go dumpster diving and run my Ameritron and HF rig on eleven meters just to piss off the local low-lifes.
Trouble is that I don't have an echo box or a roger beep and without either of both of those, you ain't s*it on 11 meters.

Maybe Mark has one that he would sell me.

And while I'm at it I think I'll use Roger Wiseman's call sign.
After all, if Roger can use Lloyd's call sign at will, turnabout is fair play.

Roger can rest in comfort that I will not use his call sign or address to "advertise" the alleged sale of kiddy porn as he did to Lloyd Davies.
Roger has me hands down there...I could never sink as low into the gutter as Roger.

And if you do a Google search for Roger Wiseman, the returns are just as numerous....if not more.
It is quite obvious that Roger is not well liked, even reviled.

I can see it now. Roger is looking over the "buffet" and deciding which one to eat first and in walks Mark.
Mark sees the "buffet", dons a bib, and shoves Roger aside as he sniffs each tube steak like the Connoisseur of fine "meats" that Mark is.
Roger tells Mark to, "Move over, I was here first."

And the cat fight is on.......or would that be a "cock fight"?

Not sure about the lisp, but Roger does have a partial cleft palate.
Not exactly sure how this came to pass, but the story is that Roger was trying to show one of his grade school buddies how to "swing" in the seventh grade.
Story is that Roger made a dive for the kid's you-know-what and the wooden swing caught Roger right above his open mouth.
The resultant injury left Roger with a permanent malformation...a partial, missing upper lip.

LOL!!!

Mrs Heil said "be vewy vewy quiet....we are hunting woger behind teh curtain"

and Mr Heil said "that pussy will never answer his door as long as we're here"

Woger then left a puddle of piss that Marie would be proud of.

02/22/06

I informed my wife of some of Roger's/Not Roger's posts of the last twenty-four hours during our ride home this evening. The one he posted (as me) on alt.west-virginia bothered her enough that she insisted that we pay Wiseman a visit to discuss the material he is posting.

We parked our car in front of his home at 6:25 PM. It wasn't quite dark, but the living room lights were on. My wife rang the bell and there was no response. She rang again and we heard footsteps crossing the room. The light shining through the peephole in the door extinguished as Roger peered out, but the door didn't open. He moved away from the door and the light from the living room shone through the peephole again. My wife rang the bell again and said, "Coward" loud enough for anyone inside to have heard. We stood on the porch for another few moments and returned to the car. Neither Roger nor his imaginary friend appeared.

It seems that the unbalanced UnWiseman isn't the bold, fearless type he portrays in his Usenet filth postings.

Roger is a humbug.

RE: Roger Wiseman, 610 Glen Haven Av., Glendale.

Sirs:

The enclosed printout is a post that was recently put into two Usenet newsgroups. As you can see, it is done with the hope that the person named in the post will find himself in trouble with the law. This post itself is a crime as you probably know.

If you look further you will realize that the post was made via an anonymous remailer, a favorite tactic of who we know to be Roger Wiseman. Of course being able to prove that Mr. Wiseman in fact posted this is near impossible because the remailer service themselves claim they don't keep track of users.

Mr. Wiseman has a very long history of stalking the person over whose name he placed this post. The stalking and name-calling goes back two or more years.

You may well ask what my interest in this is and to be honest I have little, other than not liking the filth that Roger Wiseman posts. It may interest you to know that Mr. Wiseman used to have an account with Ovis.net, run by a Pam Hoffer. Mr. Wiseman had his Ovis account canceled just prior to signing on with you. The reason he was canceled from Ovis and the provider before that was because of his extremely filthy language and personal abuse of several users, including but not limited to Mr. Davies. Roger even had some very foul things to say about Ms. Hoffer and when she read what he said his Ovis account was canceled the very next day.

Lastly, what worries some of us is Mr. Wiseman's seeming fascination with child pornography and the fact that he seems to be so well versed in it. I do understand that the Glendale police dept. once interviewed Mr. Wiseman about his internet posts but I have no idea if any resolution ever came of it.

I will include my name and address should you wish to contact me. I have no need to send you this kind of missive anonymously but I will ask that you keep my name and address private.

Thank you.

This a public open message to Douglas Adair N8WWM....

Doug, I would advise you if you do not want the wrath of the FBI, the Ohio State Police and the Toledo police on your hide. I would advise you to stop coming to my blog and leaving the stupid messages. I have your IP address and I will share it with whomever I feel the need to.

The law has much changed since the 1990's and cyber-stalking is a federal crime. Do not think for one damned second that I will not file a complaint. I do not wish to have ANY sort of communication with you at all. So, cut the crap, or face a judge.

Further more, I feel the need to inform you that Joseph Hampton N8ECN is most wanting to get ahold of you. He's still pissed about the shit that you wrote about him, and then tried to blame me for. He's done some investigating and he's on your dumb ass.

I would think with your previous criminal record, the one in Ohio and also the one in Chicago; that you would want to avoid the law. But, you seem to have this thing about pushing your luck. Well, you keep screwing around, and your luck is going to run out; and you are going to end up in the federal prison. If you're stupid enough to believe that just leaving a fake name and e-mail prevents me from knowing who you are; you are highly mistaken.

This is your first and last warning and fair notice. Stop coming to my blog or I will be filing charges.

No reason was given for the retest, you retard, except:

The FCC has the authority, pursuant to §97.519(d)(2) of the rules to readminister any examination element previously administered by a volunteer examiner.
source: http://www.arrl.org

and:

Issuance by the FCC of a Warning Notice indicates that the FCC has what it believes to be reliable evidence of possible rules infractions and not necessarily that the recipient has violated FCC rules.
source :same source.

Now, tell us why after over 12 years, you still can't pass the General exam the first time.
. . . .
Odd, your so-called explanation.
I noted the part that stated, "the FCC had sent Wiseman a Warning Notice last November in response to allegations of deliberate and malicious interference on 20 meters."

Spin it how you want, Roger. You've been in denial for years.
And nobody believes you.
The fact is that everybody we talk to knows that you are guilty.
Everybody but you, that is.
And if you did not do this, who did? It came from your station.
Oh, wait! Maybe one of your rubber dolls was using your radio while you were at the store...yeah, that's it!

And the undeniable fact that Riley made you retest is indicative of the fact that he had good, probable cause to feel that you did willfully cause malicious interference, and on more than one occasion.
He didn't invite you to retest...he ordered you to do so. And Riley did NOT extend this "invitation" ramdomly. Nor did he pick your name out of some sort of FCC "hat".

Let us review.
You have lied about your retest.
You have lied about the Dave Heil visit.
You have lied about your run-ins with Chief Stenger.
You have lied about Lloyd Davies for years.
You have lied about your photo (but go to lengths to have Imageshack remove it when posted).
You have lied about Pam Hoffer.

No wonder nobody believes you.
You are unbelievable, Roger. And that is NOT a compliment.

1051. No Dave here

Checkmate thinks you sound like a broken record. Checkmate also wonders why Headcase needs to remove alt.test and restore the original groups (plus a few extras) before replying to tholen, or else Headcase's reply will only appear in alt.test. Tholen is an evil troll, and does not want others to read Headcase's replies.

Checkmate thinks your replies are tedious and dull. Checkmate says you're going to have to start paying him if you want him to continue making your posts seem interesting by replying to them. Checkmate suspects that you're gay, live alone with fourteen cats, and have never been married.

What does your classic unsubstantiated and erroneous claim have to do

Hello, this is a message from Philippe and Coco.

My pal Coco says that you seem to have a 'one joke act'. He says you may want to expand your repertory to a few more lines than your standard 'what does [fill in the blank] have to do with OS/2?' And that s not even that funny!

And, pal, he should know, as he works as a street performer, and has to entertain to make a living. I concur with Coco-you re in dire need of some new material! Come on, friend, if your goal is to entertain us, then show us you mean it by putting a little more effort into it. I m not even an entertainer, and I can tell you that much!

And this should be taken as advice to encourage you, not to discourage you, so don t give up!

Hey, I must be crazy, because for once I am in agreement with Coco!

Uh-oh, I just got a dirty look again. winks

Peaches!

Amateur Radio NewslineT Report 1716 - July 2 2010

Amateur Radio Newsline report number 1716 with a release date of Friday, July 2, 2010 to follow in 5-4-3-2-1.

The following is a Q-S-T. French telecommunications regulator says D-Star is illegal in that nation and French hams vow to fight. Also, a change in U.S, technology export rules could help the ham radio space program, Delaware legislators sponsor bill to exempt two way radio users from restrictive cellphone law and the sounds of a very pleasant Field Day. Hear it all on Amateur Radio NewslineT report number 1716 coming your way right now.

RADIO LAW: FRENCH TELECOMMUNICATIONS REGULATOR RULES D-STAR ILLEGAL

D-Star and possibly other digital voice protocols are not legal for hams to use in France. At least not as far as that nations telecommunications regulator is concerned. Amateur Radio Newsline's Bill Pasternak, is here with the details:

A report on France's digital ham radio website DR@F says that the nations telecommunications agency, the ARCEP, has said the D-STAR digital audio protocol specifications could allow ham radio operators to connect their stations to Internet. As far as that regulatory agency is concerned, that is a prohibited practice.

The ARCEP also cites alleged concerns regarding cryptography and national security. It also says that digital voice modes that use proprietary codecs such as the AMBE vocoder in D-Star, uses patents, licenses and proprietary undisclosed specifications that are against France's open standard policy.

It should be noted that France has always exercised strong control on use of cryptographic methods in all electronic communications. In this case, it seems to be that the ARCEP views a codec using proprietary standards such as AMBE as a way of encrypting or disguising the content of ham radio communication.

But the French ham community counters by saying that the ARCEP is not respecting the terms the agency's Directive 2009/140/CE art. 1 - paragraph b. French hams claim this to be about the fundamental right to access to the Internet by and from final users regardless of the way that access is made.

As a result the website is calling on all European amateur radio societies to help them in what they call a battle to allow all digital voice modes,. Also to permit Internet access, no restrictions on experimentation, and their first step is a big one. They have begun a region wide petition drive to the European Parliament of the European Union. One that asks that august body to direct the French government and its telecommunications regulator to respect the fundamental rights of that nations ham community to communicate using digital technology and Internet linking.

Where this all might lead is anyone's guess. We will keep you posted as we learn more.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline I'm bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, in the newsroom in the City of Angels.

HAM RADIO IN SPACE: CHANGE IN US TECHNOLOGY EXPORT RESTRICTIONSS COULD HELP THE HAM RADIO SPACE PTROGRAM

A small change in United States technology export restrictions could pave the way for closer cooperation among ham radio space related projects world-wide. The change comes to the area called Effective Export Policies in the latest US National Space Policy released June 28th.

The 2006 Space Policy statement said -- and we quote: "Exports of sensitive or advanced technical data, systems, technologies and components, shall be approved only rarely, on a case-by-case basis." This greatly impeded international collaboration between radio amateurs on ham radio satellites.

But the 2010 version appears slightly less restrictive. It says in part -- and again we quote: "The United States Government will consider the issuance of licenses for space-related exports on a case-by-case basis, pursuant to, and in accordance with, the International Traffic in Arms Regulations, the Export Administration Regulations, and other applicable laws, treaties, and regulations. Consistent with the foregoing space-related items that are determined to be generally available in the global marketplace shall be considered favorably with a view that such exports are usually in the national interests of the United States."

Translated into every day English, this policy change seems to say that technology that is essentially available from sources other than the United States will no longer be treated as secretive and secure. Most if not all ham radio related space hardware and software would likely fall into this category. However, sensitive or advanced spacecraft-related exports may require a government-to-government agreement or other acceptable arrangement. You can read the full text of the 2010 National Space Policy of the United States of America on line at tinyurl.com/25v9wuv or http://www.whitehouse.gov/sites/default/files/national_space_policy_6-28-10.pdf (Southgate)

RADIO POLITICS: PRESIDENT OBAMA GIVES NOD TO NATIONAL BROADBAND PLAN

President Barrack Obama has proposed almost doubling the spectrum available for current and new wireless devices to connect to the Internet. It's a plan that could eventually impact on all spectrum users., Amateur Radio Newsline's Bruce Tennant, K6PZW, has the details:

On Monday, June 28th, President Obama signed a memorandum that commits the U.S. to free up 500 megahertz of government and commercial spectrum over the next 10 years. This, to meet demands for mobile access to broadband services.

The president's plan, which requires congressional legislation, would draw on government and commercial airwaves the administration considers to be underutilized. The White house says that revenue from auctioning the freed-up spectrum would help build a nationwide mobile broadband system for public-safety agencies as well.

The Presidents proposals which is based on the FCC's proposed National Broadband Plan calls for deploying the fastest and most extensive wireless networks of any nation by the year 2020, to ensure wider service and spur competition with cable and telephone companies. It also seeks 12 billion to 16 billion dollars in funding to build and operate a totally interoperable telecommunications network for emergency workers.

While wireless carriers and broadband suppliers are pleased with both the FCC and presidential plans, fierce resistance is expected from television station owners. They say that they already gave up significant spectrum in 2009 as part of their switch to digital. Broadcasters claim said they need all of their current band space to offer viewers multiple, simultaneous programs, and to expand into services such as mobile TV. They also back a proposal for congress to authorize a search for all unused or under utilized spectrum.

And here is where ham radio could at least theoretically be impacted. While only speculation at the moment, a full fledged spectrum review could eventually include most if not all ham radio allocations at 222 MHz and above. More realistically its frequencies at 902 MHz and higher that might be most at risk. This is because the shorter wavelengths and smaller physical size of antennas makes them a better choice for wireless broadband and mobile broadcast operations. But moving the current users of spectrum above 900 MHz would also entail changes in service allocations in the various VHF and UHF bands below 900 MHz as well to give those displaced for broadband a new home.

Hams are not the only ones who might feel the impact of an across the board spectrum survey. If the government uses the amount the number of spectrum users of day to day activity as a basis for which services should retain spectrum and which should not, a lot of low utilization services could find themselves in a fight for survival. RADIO LAW: DELAWARE REPRESENTATIVE SPONSORS LAW TO EXCLUDE TWO WAY RADIOI FROM STATES CELLPHONE BAN

A bill being filed in the Delaware State House of Representatives aims to allow the continued use of amateur, CB and other two-way radios by motorists. Amateur Radio Newsline's Frank Haas, KB4T, reports:

Introduced by State Representatives Ruth Briggs King who is the prime sponsor and Representative Dave Wilson, the bill is a reaction to a pending law that will have the unintended consequence of outlawing the use of two way radios along with cellular phone and texting devices by Delaware drivers in early 2011.

Having cleared the General Assembly, but not yet been signed into law by the governor, House Substitute 1 for House Bill 229 would prohibit Delaware motorists from using hand-held cell phones to hold conversations or send text messages. The pending statute would also bar the use of hand-held devices to access e-mail or browse the Internet while operating a motor vehicle.

Representative King says that the issue that was never fully explored during the debate on this measure. As such it will also inadvertently make it illegal to use two-way radios that are used to coordinate the operation of hundreds, if not thousands, of service and delivery trucks throughout the state.

Representative King, who also tried to amend the original bill to exempt amateur radio operators, said the new bill will also accomplish that goal. This by carving out an exemption for two-way radios with a fixed placement in the vehicle. She and Representative Wilson are hoping to garner full bi-partisan support for the corrective measure.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Frank Haas, KB4T, reporting.

Governor Markell has said he plans to sign into law the bill banning the use of hand-held cell phones by motorists. King says that she is hoping that her bill will be signed into law at the same signing ceremony. (eHam, other published reports)

RADIO AID: L.A. REPEATER GROUP GIVES HOMELESS USERS FOOD AND SHELTER

Ham radio has come to the aid of two men who recently lost their home. According to Chris Baldwin, KF6AJM of Southern California's Desert Communications Network, Robert Martin, KE6YDO and Richard Martin, KE6RJI are brothers that lived in the City of Maywood until just recently. That's when their deceased mother's home was sold at probate and leaving them without a roof over their heads.

Baldwin says that both brothers are unemployed and have only one running vehicle between the two of them. They also had nowhere to go, with one of the few things in their lives being their friends on the Los Angeles area 435 repeater.

Hearing that the brothers were in dire straits, system owner Gary Elmer, K6GE, let the system users know that the Martin brothers were in need of help. Using PayPal, donations were submitted to the 435 Repeater Fund on the repeaters web page. In a matter of three hours $1014 was raised. Not only did donations come from those in the repeaters coverage area but also from across the region and the nation from those listening via a live audio feed on the internet.

The monies collected were to be given to the brothers in the form of gift cards for food. A motel room for them will be paid for directly by the repeater group.

According to Chris Baldwin, KF6AJM: "The powers that be on the repeater supervising this are in regular communications with them. Things are being taken care of and we can definitely tell that they were grateful for the help, and like we say: 'they would do it for us." So we are glad to help where we can."

Hopefully, KE6YDO and KE6RJI will soon have their share of the proceeds from the sale of the property in Maywood. Latest word is that it should be out of probate in about 5 weeks. In the meantime, hams who know them, and many who do not, are making certain that they have a roof over their head and food to eat.

And for those who are wondering: Yes this is the same 435 repeater that long ago gained world wide notoriety for its rather liberal form of operation. What many are not aware of is that since its earliest days the repeater and its user base have dedicated themselves to many charitable and community activities. This includes the first time ham radio went into hospitals at Christmas time to bring kids stuck there for the holidays a bit of season cheer. That was the original Operation Santa Claus that dates back in the early 1970's. (KF6AJM)

ENFORCEMENT: FCC ISSUES WARNING NOTICE FOR SAN FRAN UNLICENSED STATION

The FCC's San Francisco office has issued Notice of Unlicensed Operation the FCC has Phillip N. Reiker of Watsonville, California. This, regarding an unlicensed broadcast station operating from property that he owns in the city of Santa Cruz.

According to the June 3rd notice, the San Francisco FCC Office had received information that an unlicensed broadcast radio station on 101.1 MHz was allegedly operating in Santa Cruz. This past March 19th agents from this office confirmed that radio signal was coming from property that public records show Reiker as owning.

Reiker was told that he must immediately cease operation of the unlicensed transmitter. He was also given ten days to explain his activities to the FCC. That date has now past. (FCC)

RADIO RULES: 700 MHz BAND NOW OFF LIMITS TO WIRELESS MICS

The FCC has issued an Enforcement Advisory stating that as of June 12th that wireless microphones and similar devices are now prohibited from operation between 698 to 806 MHz. These devices include wireless intercoms, wireless in-ear monitors, wireless audio instrument links, and wireless cueing equipment.

By way of background, when some models of wireless microphones were originally designed, the frequencies they used were located between the frequencies utilized by television stations to broadcast programs. With the completion of the Digital TV transition on June 12, 2009, television stations no longer use the frequencies in the band in and adjacent to 700 MHz. These frequencies are now being used by commercial providers of wireless broadband and by public safety entities such as police, fire, and emergency response services. RADIO LAW: UK REGULATOR TURNS TVI INVESTIGATIONS TO THE BBC

United Kingdom Telecommunications regulator Ofcom is transferring responsibility for investigating radio and television interference complaints to the British Broadcasting Company.

As of June 30th all outstanding cases with Ofcom will be passed to the BBC for action from that date. On and after July 1st all UK residents will be required to file complaints to the BBC.

If, following the investigation by the BBC, there is evidence of interference caused by something outside the publics control and which is unlawful, the BBC may refer your case back to Ofcom for possible enforcement action. More on this is on-line at tinyurl.com/2adwckj. (Southgate)

RADIO ON THE WEB: NEW RADIO ASTRONOMY GROUP WEBSITE OPENED

The British Astronomical Association Radio Astronomy Group new website is now live. The aim of these web-pages is to show that there are aspects of radio astronomy that can be observed using relatively simple equipment. Also, that observations of scientific merit can be achieved by modest observatories that can be accommodated in an average-sized back garden. The website carries a short URL and is in cyberspace at www.britastro.org/radio, (BAA Radio Astronomy Group)

WITH NEWSLINE: WHAT IS TINY URL

Have you noticed a slight change here on Newsline? In case you have not noticed, about a month ago we began giving web addresses using a shorthand called Tiny URL. But what is Tiny URL you ask? Well it's a method of taking a very large and complex web address and making it really -- well -- tiny.

Tiny URL is a free web based service located in cyberspace at www dot tinyurl dot com. All you need do is cut and past in a long URL, click the box marked "Make Tiny URL" and the program that runs the website will created the shorthand version and display it on a new page.

By way of example. I was just reading a story about the FCC's ban on 700 MHz wireless mics and other devices. Its actually found in cyberspace at http://hraunfoss.fcc.gov/edocs_public/attachmatch/DA-10-1053A1.pdf. Talk about a mouth full. But by plugging that in at TinyURL.com the result is http://tinyurl.com/2ez4rxb. Since all modern web browsers automatically insert the http:// all we need to give you is tinyurl.com/2ez4rxb to get to the website.

Anyhow, if your clubs website suffers from one of those longer than long Internet addresses because you are the guest on someone else's server, you might want to try shortening it using TinyURL.com. After all, it's the shortest URL's like ARRL.org, ARNewsline.org or even tinyurl.com that are the easiest to remember.

And less we forget: Our thanks to Bob Gonsett, W6VR, over at the C-G-C Communicator newsletter for putting us onto TinyURL.com. Its made things a lot easier for those of us who anchor these reports to give you a web address that short and easy to jot down. (ARNewsline, CGC)

HAM RADIO IN SPACE: GENERAL CONTACTS FROM THE ISS IS AN ON-ORBIT DECISION

Charlie Sufana, AJ9N, says that its up to the ham radio operators on board the International Space Station to decide if they do or do not want to make general ham radio contacts or just chat with kids in schools.

In a posting to the SAREX remailer, Sufana, who is one of the ARISS Mentors, notes that lately there have been some comments on the various Internet bulletin boards about having general contacts or leaving the packet or crossband repeater on. In response to those hams critical of the lack of time that the licensed astronauts and cosmonauts are devoting to contacts with the general ham public, Sufana says that as with anything in society, the International Space Station crew have many different interests and a very heavy work load. He notes that some have been ham radio operators for many years before going on-orbit and may want to make a random contacts. Others have had next to no experience with the hobby and get on only sporadically. And notes Sufana, there have been quite a few who have gotten their license shortly before going up to the I-S-S and often times they only get on for the scheduled school contacts. And notes AJ9N, if they had not gotten their licenses then even the school contact list would have suffered because on some expeditions there would be no hams scheduled to fly.

Sufana says that after every school contact, the crew is told how to configure the radio. If the crew does not set up the radios for general usage, then there is not much ARISS can do about it other than to remind them. He also advises all of us that that ARISS is a guest onboard the International Space Station and if the crew elects to not turn something on or to operate, then that is their decision. AJ9N says that ARISS can only suggest; it can never demand. (ARNewslineT from SAREX Remailer)

THAT FINAL ITEM: A VERY PLEASANT FIELD DAY 2010

If there's one word we had to choose to describe Field Day 2010, that word might be pleasant. And while the underlying spirit of contesting was still there, it seemed like everyone taking part was enjoying the moment:

Actual Field Day Audio from Chicago

--

That's how Field Day sounded in the hamshack and studio of Hap Holly, KC9RP in the Chicago suburb of Des Planes, Illinois. 1900 miles to the West, the fun of Field Day was just as prevalent:

--

Actual Field Day Audio from Los Angeles

--

And for those who were smart enough to include a 6 meter station, we can only say that the propagation gods seemed to be shining on that band. That's because one of the truly rarest states on that band is Wyoming and the operators at WY7U seemed to have a Field Day pipeline to the west coast:

--

Actual Audio of WY7U working N6RW

--

In all, Field Day 2010 sounded like everyone taking part was enjoying the moment and the contacts on the pleasant moments that they spent on the air. And we can't think of a nicer way to end this weeks newscast.

(ARNewslineT with some audio supplied by KC9RP)

Roger is one of only three Glendale residents who have been accused of having syphilis.
The Health Department confiscated four rubber dolls from his residence and the dolls are undergoing further tests.
Roger is claiming that the vinyl sweeties (two females, one male and one little boy) are clean and pure and that he "almost" contracted syphilis from Lloyd Davies, a claim that Mr. Davies vehemently denies.
The Health Department is also interviewing several of the patrons of the Shipwreck Lounge, a known hangout that Wiseman frequents.
Roger is loudly proclaiming his innocence and said, "You can't get syphilis from jacking off with your own hands, Lardass."

Can someone explain to me why superimposing audio on an RF signal...

Doesn't make any sense to me. They are both clipping and distorting the waveshape... and that's bad!

Given that he's dead, prison would be as stupid as your claiming anyone thinks possession of a copy of the Constitution is illegal.

Pure horsehockey.
Post a link to the actual story.

The reporter hadn't done his homework. McVeigh was quickly arrested on numerous federal charges, none of which included the Constitution.

During the 40's there was an immigrations act that was passed into law in which the very part declared that possession of certain anti-government documents was illegal. Which led up to Mr. McCarthy and his witch hunt for finding out who was a communist. I believe, the Supremne Court ruled that was unconstitutional because it violated a couple of amendments and other federal laws.

Since the Constitution sets the framework for creating the government, how can it be anti-government? If it were, the entire judicial system would be illegal.

Higher levels of compression and intelligibility can be accomplished with RF clipping. This end result must be filtered to get this gain without creating a dirty RF signal.

Huh? Dirty RF signal? The modulated (and clipped) RF signal is converted back to audio... then filtered. Now I see this method is not only complicated, but when all is said & done... it's still clipping an AC wave... which has issues.

I informed my wife of some of Roger's/Not Roger's posts of the last twenty-four hours during our ride home this evening. The one he posted (as me) on alt.west-virginia bothered her enough that she insisted that we pay Wiseman a visit to discuss the material he is posting.

We parked our car in front of his home at 6:25 PM. It wasn't quite dark, but the living room lights were on. My wife rang the bell and there was no response. She rang again and we heard footsteps crossing the room. The light shining through the peephole in the door extinguished as Roger peered out, but the door didn't open. He moved away from the door and the light from the living room shone through the peephole again. My wife rang the bell again and said, "Coward" loud enough for anyone inside to have heard. We stood on the porch for another few moments and returned to the car. Neither Roger nor his imaginary friend appeared.

It seems that the unbalanced UnWiseman isn't the bold, fearless type he portrays in his Usenet filth postings.

Roger is a humbug.

"Stones have energies that many witches learn to work with, myself among them. That is not to say that I'm an expert by any means but I do have my favorites. I learned very young about the energies of stones;"

Yeah, you Kook. Stones DO have "energy"....when you throw them at Mark.

Well, Lloyd was a no-show and continued the verbal assault on the newsgroups. He always talks tough behind his keyboard. And, I understand he is now doing the same sort of thing on the NIM Busters Board.

Well, about 8.35 this morning (December 23, 2004) I located his apartment in a nasty looking section of town. I'm a pretty good sized man, but I put my gun in my back waistband after exiting the car. I located his apartment and knocked on the door. The doorbell was missing and bare wires were sticking out of the wall. I heard someone say I'm coming and shortly the door opened with a safety chain lock still engaged. He asked what I wanted and I introduced myself and asked if we could have a conversation. He turned white as a sheet and attempted to slam the door, but I already had a foot wedged in the opening. He started shaking uncontrollably and was shouting leave me alone, leave me alone! I told him he didn't seem so tough now face to face and then noticed a putrid odor of urine and he was pissing his pants and crying like a baby. Please leave me alone Oris he said, I was just having fun and meant no harm, please leave, please. I could see the filthy floor of this apartment and the dirty floors and the stench of a grown man pissing on himself were almost enough to make me want to vomit, and I don't have a queasy stomach. Upon telling him that this time he would escape a ass kicking and not to ever get a smart mouth with me again and a verbal yes from him, I departed. That apartment complex looked like a crackhouse, niggers everywhere, filthy grounds and stairwells. Junk cars everywhere and garbage overflowing the garbage cans.

This Lloyd is nothing more than white trash that delivers pizzas and could afford to take a trip out of town if the ticket cost $5.00.

I'm sending this to a friend who despises Lloyd Davies and he wanted to post it for everyone to see just what kind of chickenshit asshole this Davies really is.

Oris even emailed me photos of his radio shack.

Roger...where did Oris set his "shack' up and how many radios did he have?
Where were his antennas and how many did he have?
What was Oris' physical setting, such as the landscape, etc.?

The bottom line is, Roger, that you are lying. Oris did NOT author that bit Hell, I doubt even that YOU authored it since you have spelling problems of

You have never ben in contact with Oris, Fatty, you ran your fat mouth and hid from him at Dalton and at your HUD apartment.
Oris still lives on Jot em' Down Road in Danielsville, Georgia.
His "shack" was/is an outbuilding in back of his house.
Go to his page on qrz.com and count his radios, you'll have to take your smelly shoes off, though.

And you are no spelling expert:

"breaddead" - LLoyd hasn't got anything upstairs in the oven
"defenseive" - Lardass is "defensive" of his ignorance
"counter-offenseive" - When LARDASS LLoyds attack
"nights" - Athens ASSHOLE was referring to last "night's" masturbation session
"I forget to set the playlist in Winamp to repeat!" - Mongolloyd also "forgets" the use of past tense, maybe he forgot!
"Techincal" - Lloyd just hates those "technical" things
"Dalkes" - Lloyd's granddad remembers when movies became "talkies" too bad LARDASS learned to Dalk <sic>
"That it!" - When Mongolloyds get real mad, they talk like Tor Johnson
"Woger" - LARDASS closely identifies with Elmer Fudd with his lack of hair and all
"decide on weather or not" - It's always "stormy weather" with Lloyd deciding "whether" or not to use correct English
"can not" - Mongolloyd is wondering how he "cannot" seem to get ahead in life
"is'nt" - "Isn't" LARDASS cute when he is mad?
"PAINFULL" - How LARDASS' bathroom scale feels when he steps on it in the morning, real "painful"
"I wish for Roger Wisemand" - Lloyd liked thosed thingd ford Rogerd
"alot" - Davies dreams he can communicate in English a lot
"thier" - Lavender Lloyd sure does lisp after a night behind the dumpster
"dont" - Lloyd says "dont", the rest of the world says "don't"
"Isreal" - Is FATASS Lloyd's retardation for real, or can he blame Israel?
"juist jelous" "extermenate" - A three for one post Athens Asshole axiom
"footting" - What LARDASS doesn't have, an equal "footing" anywhere

"Cant" - Emmanuel?
"th" - When Lloyd gets nervous, he stutte, er stutters
"enfighting" - Lloyd's two brain cells are infighting for control of his stupidity
"YOU STUPID JEW!" - Wasn't Jesus Jewish, so called Christian LLoyd?

You have never ben in contact with Oris, Fatty, you ran your fat mouth and hid from him at Dalton and at your HUD apartment.
Oris still lives on Jot em' Down Road in Danielsville, Georgia.
His "shack" was/is an outbuilding in back of his house.
Go to his page on qrz.com and count his radios, you'll have to take your smelly shoes off, though.

You are correct. I have never "ben" in contact with Oris.
(your spelling is shining through yet again)
I have "been" in contact with him on numerous occasions in years past, Woger.
I've never been to his QRZ page. I DO have photos of his gear that he emailed to me, however.
Oris, while a seemingly nice enough guy, could not author a single sentence without a series of gross misspellings.
Oris' emails were so poorly spelled that one almost had to interpret what he was trying to say.
Oris even once apologized to me for his poor spelling and was (unlike you) quite up front about it.

So, Roger...your post concerning Oris' alleged letter about his visit to Lloyd is, and I will call you on this, a total, fabricated lie. Simply put, Oris did NOT write that. In fact, I doubt that you wrote it, either.

Where do you get the idea from based upon this article?
Nothing in the articke said anything about getting busted for driving a look alike cop car, marked or not.
No judge in his right mind would make a person pay a fine for that bullshit.

Hell, I had my 1963 Plymouth Belvidere decked out with rear deck lights, overhead lights and antennas and people thought I was a city detective because their cars were similar. Not once got pulled over by a cop for it.

A friend of mine bought a county cruiser at an auction. He never repainted it. He had more antennas on his car than the county cop cars did. Nobody ever pulled him for it.

Ignore the Troll.
The young dude was arrested because he had a weapon(s) in the very near proximity of the President, not because of what his car looked like.

This man has gone so far as to use the name (and post over it) of the daughter of an Amateur Radio operator who held his disabled, beloved, five year old daughter as she breathed her last while her father was holding her. (this is an aside, but shows the mindset of the spammer) Such cruelty is unforgivable and inhumane, though not necessarily a ToS violation of your policy. He uses her name as Tayleor Robesin.

Searches have determined that the abuser is indeed one Mark Morgan from Chassell, Michigan. He posts via Hughes.net.

1222. Mark's ramblings...Arson or Imagination?

On December 31, 2007 you said," by local wit an email from some one in the ng as I have answered many time someone on anyof the Rec radios groups? What are the police doing about it some 2 or 5 years later? police finaly jail the torch but no action against the guy from the NG claiming I was a pedo

On March 03, 2007 you said, "I choose the path of resistance after the escalating filth result inthe posting of the address of another man mark mrak morgan as mine and his home being burned down"

On November 07, 2008 you said, (on Ham Island) "the cycle will go on the only question is how I tried leaving the web in 2000 the threats went offline into the real wrold with email to everyone around til they/he found someone unstable enough o believe an anonomous email and BURN my home becuase someone said I was X.

my home of those days is bruned out shell those that were getting the harrasing email are in jail the persp who are the same folks now as then are still at, still haven't manged to settle heh insurance on that matter

On February 14, 2008 you said in RRAP, "they deleyed for some time but are finaly nogating for setlement but they delayed the settle ment in part because you or people like youhave cominacated the unsopprted allegation 9 anbd the unsupertablesinc i could establisgh my wherabout that I did the deed, but twith an arson it always takes for ever to settle

So, Mark. To date your lies are difficult to keep up with. How did this happen, if it even DID happen?

You have said somebody else's house was burned down, someone with the same name as you. Then you claim that a neighbor burned your house down after receiving an email that you are a pedophile. The question comes to mind is, how did somebody find out your alleged neighbor's email address? Why not was the email traced?

You go on to say that your whereabouts on the night of the alleged fire were questioned and that you had to establish an alibi. This sounds to me as if you were or are a prime suspect in the alleged arson.

Your comment that the "torch" is now languishing behind bars is also very highly suspect. As one who has had experience investigating an arson or two, Mark, your story is odd to say the least.

You say that the insurance company is just now negotiating with you over a settlement, after several years since the alleged incident. What does not ring true here, Mark, is that if the alleged arsonist is indeed incarcerated and, by extrapolation, either confessed or has been found guilty in a Court of Law, then the insurance company would have long ago settled with you.

The fact that you claim a settlement is just now being negotiated leads me to believe that you are lying yet again. In fact, if it has taken years to even come close to an insurance settlement, I would have to speak from past experience that the insurance company still considers you to be a prime suspect even though they cannot prove it.

Yes, insurance settlements, in arson cases, CAN take years, but ONLY when the insurance company suspects the homeowner of being the arsonist. Why? Because in most cases the insurance companies refuse to pay full value and thereby "reward" the homeowner who was looking for a fast buck.

So. You are either lying about the entire alleged arson so as to garner pity as being a poor "victim" or you are lying about the person who you claim is the responsible party. You've told so many convoluted tales about this alleged arson over the years that you simply cannot be believed.

I suspect that this arson story is a result of your kooky imagination and if it is indeed fact, then you better get your stories straight.

Whose house was it? Yours or somebody else with your same name?

Don't answer. You will only spin some more lies.

And now we see that Gav's blog tells quite a different tale, blames it on "Coders" but since the two of you are Kooks nobody believes either of you. http://gav-jewitch.blogspot.com/2009/06/terror-in-usa.html

She says, "To the best of our knowledge the house was unoccupied at the time."

She said, "We had sold it previously at auction."

And of course she indicated that you had been long gone and were off the Title when this alleged deed occurred when she said, "We had heard the house had been burned down but this picture, which was posted as a taunt to a forum my husband monitors this past week, was the first confirmation of the rumors that we have had."

Note that she said nothing at all about the "wrong" Mark Morgan suffering an arson as you alleged.

Better get your lies straight, Mark.

Something stinks here.
Markie said the ins. co. was arguing about a settlement with him.
Gav said they sold the house at an auction and the arson happened AFTER they sold it.
Ergo Mark is a liar.
The insurance company would have to settle with the party who bought the house. Not with Mark.
The house didn't belong to the Morgans and as such Mark has no claim to any insurance settlement.
Maybe one of Gav's unhappy rocks caught fire and burned the house down after they fled to Michigan.

Radio Guy is way off base again.
I drove a 2006 Taurus for four years. It had three antennas on it.
One was a VHF antenna...it was for our Sheriff Dept.
The other was a UHF antenna...that was for our MDTs.
The third was for the silly CB bands.

And my Taurus had red/blue lights in the upper, darkened area of the windshield. They were hidden by the tint.
It also had red/blue LED lights behind the grill. They were also hidden, as was the siren.

I drove this Taurus for years, in many jurisdictions, and never once had any officers do a traffic stop because this Taurus "looked" like a police car...which it was.

And Radio Guy? Even when I was out of my jurisdiction...even in a neighboring state, if I saw a brother officer in need of assistance I would activate my emergency lights and assist the officer.
I never once had a brother officer refuse my assistance or tell me that I was out of my jurisdiction.

We stick together. It is part of the brotherhood.

In the late 60s we had this little transceiver,I seem to recall the name Kraco,but all searches just bring up standard ch 14 walkie talkies...however this had a tunable receive with just one ch transmit..unless one changed it..100 mw.and a transmit push down lever,if u can call it that..on the front along with the standard telescoping antenna on the back,powered by batteries I think or a adapter,if anyone has one...or a picture of one with a link to it on the net here,please reply and thanks

Before the mother could raise a concern, Roger went on to say, "It reminded me of a peanut."

Relaxing with a hidden smile, Roger's Mom asked, "Really small, was it?"

"No.", Roger replied. "It was salty."

Social workers are called the "nice police" by UK existential psychotherapists.

Some people forget that they are agents for the state,

Hi,

Does anyone know or have a source for the microphone wiring pin out for a late 1970s Shakespeare Fortress base?
This rig has a 5 pin DIN connector. I looked inside and pin 3 is not connected to anything.

Back of radio says it was manufactured by Teknika Electronics Corporation, Japan.

Thanks,
Steve

obscenities and pointing the gun and the Cops

TROY — Amateur radio enthusiasts are abuzz on the airwaves over a traffic ticket Steve Bozak received Sunday in Troy as he talked to his buddies over the very same frequency.

Bozak, who owns an antenna company and has been using so-called “ham” radios for 34 years, was pulled over at the intersection of 15th and Hoosick streets while on his way to breakfast with fellow enthusiasts of the technology. He was slapped with a ticket for talking on a cell phone while driving, and he said Officer Mark Millington dismissed his claims that the radio was not in fact a telephone.

“He assured me that I could not be speaking on that cell phone while I was driving,” said Bozak, who lives in Clifton Park. “I mentioned to him politely that it wasn’t a cell phone but an amateur radio. He assured me that it was all the same.”

The section of New York’s vehicle and traffic law Bozak was cited for violating, 1225-c, requires a phone to be “in the immediate proximity” of the driver’s ear. It defines the types of communication devices it applies to as ones “interconnected to a public switched telephone network … provided by a commercial mobile radio service.”

On its face, the statute does not appear to refer to devices like a ham radio, which transmits its signal across the same airwaves as devices used by emergency personnel to communicate with each other and with dispatchers.

Such radios do not require the user to place the device to his or her ear — they are typically played over speakers — and need only be held while the user is actually speaking.

New York is among eight states with a law banning the use of cell phones while driving. Washington’s law specifically excludes ham operators, who must first be licensed by the government to use the airwaves.

Bozak, who became licensed in 1976, said he believes the bulk of users have the devices in their vehicles. He said many are up in arms over the ticket, and some were audible on a scanner Wednesday voicing their displeasure over their radios — many of them while driving.

“I don’t know how many cops I’ve been around in how many different states, but nobody ever said a word to me,” said one man whose job takes him on the road.

Ultimately, a Troy City Court judge will decide whether the ticket issued to Bozak is acceptable under the state's law.

Sgt. Terry Buchanan, the Police Department's spokesman who worked traffic patrols for years, said he doesn't recall this issue coming up in the past. He said the department would have no comment on the matter because it is still pending in court.

Bozak is scheduled to appear on June 23, and he said more than a dozen fellow radio enthusiasts plan on being there with him.

He faces a $100 fine, according to the statute.

"I'll have my day in court, and we'll see how it goes," he said. "But I certainly have every intention of pushing this politely, and through the right methods, to get it resolved."

The date may be pushed back because Bozak has requested a supporting deposition from Millington, who is typically assigned to Troy's public schools and rarely works traffic patrol.

Bozak wants Millington to detail what happened and explain how he was breaking the law.

"He's going to have to prove that I was on a cell phone, which is going to be hard to do," he said. "I wasn't on a cell phone."

I pull over or use a speakerphone. So should everyone!!

I've been stopped and ticketed numerous times in NYC when using a transceiver.

I appealed the tickets, bringing along a copy of my ham ticket.

Usually the judge dismissed them.

Roger Wiseman has recently filed a civil suit against an adult book store that is across the river from his abode on Glen Dale Avenue.

The crux of the lawsuit is that Roger purchased, in good faith, a reproduction vinyl likeness of Pamela Anderson and that the seller maintained that the reproduction would "meet his every fantasy."

Roger brought the $300 likeness home and proceeded to ply her with candles, wine, and song.

Roger became disgruntled when he realized that "Pamela's" oral orifice was much too large to accommodate his miniscule member and, enraged that he had been "ripped off", Roger returned the likeness the following morning.

He demanded his money be returned in full.

The proprietor told Roger that there was no money back guarantee and that he was not going to see a refund.

Roger has since contacted an attorney in hopes of obtaining a settlement.

Talking on a cell phone while driving is distracting. Hands-free is not an excuse - and it's not safer. There have been studies to demonstrate this. If hands-free operation of a cellphone is legal and handsful operation is not, it's because lawmakers are either idiots or they want to continue talking on their cell phones while driving. Try brain-free cellphone operation (it's called putting the cell phone on "silent ringing" (NOT vibrate) and letting voice mail take messages which you can handle when you reach your destination or stop for gas or a restroom break).

Hold it or not hold it, it's still not safe if it's a cellphone.

I suspect the nature of the conversation has a lot more to do with why ham radios and cb radios are safer, if, in fact, that's true.
I don't think there have been any studies investigating this for ham radios and cb radios.

Handsfree on cell phones is not safer and it should be illegal to use it while driving.

Some cell phones with bluetooth allow you to originate a phone call with your cell phone in your hip pocket (so you can't press ANY buttons on the phone, or get it out of your pocket without removing your seat belt) by pushing a button on your earpiece, speak the name of who you want to call (this required voice training ahead of time), talk, then push a button on your earpiece to hang up. This is not safer, but it's a much better approximation to real hands-free.

It should be self-evident to even a child that in this day and age, walking into an airport wearing a shirt festooned with wires, batteries and blinking lights is an extremely BAD idea. Have you never heard of suicide bombers? The fact that the shirt is actually a star trek product is irrelevant. How is the TSA supposed to know at first glance that the shirt is "an official Star Trek product" and not some kind of bomb vest?

Yeah, 25 years ago, nobody would have cared, but circumstances have changed. There are appropriate places to wear such a shirt, but the security line at an airport is most definitely NOT one of those places.

You could go to a toy store and buy a legally-marketed, legally-purchased toy plastic gun, but what do you think would happen if you walked into an airport, or a bank, or a police station with that (admittedly legal) toy gun in your hand? You'd be damn lucky not to get your head blown off on the spot - and anyone idiotic enough to do such a thing would deserve it if that happened.

It's appalling that you're so stupid that somebody actually has to explain this to you. You have about as much common sense as a pile of rocks.

Awhile back I requested info on this "collectible" late 1970's 40 channel CB.
Except for photos and some microphone pin out information the Internet was mostly a black hole for details on this rig.

After a couple of days I came across Ken's Electronics web site.
They have a cross reference of SAM's photofacts for CB that suggests looking for "twins" of the Fortress under CB-157 and CB-205.

It appears the Fortress electronics are similar to the Realistic TRC 455 (21-1542) and the Courier Conqueror 40D. The Rat Shack version seems to have more info on the web.

I got rid of the PLL noise on the receiver by popping out the PLL daughter card, opening up the shielding cage, cleaning the shielding edges with an eraser, replacing the cover and reinstalling the PLL card.

Looks like some one hacked the PLL circuitry for extra channels.
The 3 position delta tune switch provides normal 1-40 channels in the far right position and 80 extra channels in the other two positions.

Is there a freq list that matches these extra channels or does it vary based on the PLL chip?

I recently picked up a late 70's 40 channel tube rig called the Colt Midnight Special.

It seems to be made by the parent company of Panasonic.
In the 1960's thru 1970's they made alot of reasonable quality tube CB rigs for Lafayette, (COMSTAT 25A, 25B, 35, etc.), Gemtronics GTX-5000,Shakespeare 740, Teaberry T, Robyn Executive, Colt, Realistic radios all based on the same chassis with different front panels ,slightly different controls, but pretty much the same innards. eBay is littered with them.
The COMSTAT 35's I own bench test with exceptional receiver sensitivity, better than average transmit audio, typical output power for this vintage rig.

The Colt Midnight Special I procured was a little ratty looking. The front panel was in good shape but the top of the case had been drilled into in three different locations, there was significant rust along the lower back edge of the radio where the lower case cover meets the chassis, the 6BQ5 and 12AT7 tubes tested as shorted, the microphone provided was wired for electronic rather than relay switching, the AC power plug octal socket cover was broken up and missing pieces, the rig powered up with what sounded like a capacitor failing, and the receiver was fairly deaf in the one lower half of the band.

I cleaned up the rust, replaced the microphone, replaced the 6BQ5, ordered a 12AT7, found that what I thought was a failing capacitor was actually a marginal tube socket for the 12AT7 combined with dirty relay contacts.

I'm hoping the 12AT7 will cleaning up the deafness since it seems to be in the synthesizer circuit.
These rigs are almost impossible to tune up because of the aged hardened sealant used on the tuning slugs results in cracked and broken slugs if you try to move them.

I'm hoping that the schematic I found online for a Robyn Executive is close enough match to this rig to get me thru the rest of the refurb.

I know this probably isn't the correct place to introduce myself so I'll get to the point.

I've been getting into Short Wave and CB radio lately and I just found a Lafayette Telsat SSB-140 radio. I got it for 5 bucks. Didn't have a power cord or mic however, so I had to take the bottom off and install a regular AC power cord soldered straight in. So far I've only picked up about two people with it but I don't have much for an antenna ether.

Anyways, after downloading the manual and service manual for it online I still can't find what to use for a mic. I have a 5 pin, 5000 ohm mic from a CB, but it just puts an odd buzz on the speaker when plugged in. If anyone has a SSB-140 or similar could you tell me how many ohms the mic is and/or if I need a special mic? I'd really like to try this thing out.

Also when I run it it has almost no volume. Not even static is loud at full volume. Perhaps that is due to the fact that it doesn't have a mic in? Or is it that my CB antenna on the floor isn't good enough even for static? I did pick up some faint voices on two different stations while the dial was on the AM setting.

Any help is really appreciated. I'm just getting into this stuff so I really don't know what I'm doing yet. Will see ya'll around.

If the radio has electronic rather than relay switching a miswired microphone will result in all the symptoms you describe.
5k ohms sounds high for a solid state rig. You probably will have better results with a lower impedance element.

This web site might be helpful.

Thanks, I took a look at the service manual for it and found a schematic that showed the mic wiring. I'll have to do some modifications to get one of my mics to work.

For an antenna I'm using a 6' magnet base antenna for CB's. No idea the brand or model. It looks exactly the same as the antenna on the cop car in Dukes of Hazard, and that is about all I know. Today I hooked up some old antenna's that were mounted about 30' off the ground and picked up a few more people. They were the fiberglass rod type, most likely from a boat or something. The static and voices are still very quiet on the speaker though. Its hard to hear it even when on full volume. Headphones work but require more than half volume also.

I'm ganna look out for a second SSB radio and set it up and see what results I get out of these 30' antennas and a magnet base antenna on top a car. When I was younger we used to get 7 miles running standard CB's on the legal 4 watts, same antennas. I had never heard of SSB before, and according to the things I've read so far, I should be able to get close to 50 mile range. That would be pretty cool.

Indeed throw it away and get yourself a brand new "10 meter" rig from http://sales.kb9rqz.com !! We'll even throw in a free clip-N-peak, which will have you ready to go on 11 meters (CB) right out of the box. Forget about 4 watts. Some of my rigs swing over 100 watts !! So get kelp !!!

What can be the reason that truckers here in the US have CB radio antennas that are way too long to fit where they install them and so they tilt them forward at an insane angle? I thought the transmission waves go out perpendicular to the antenna. Do they get some advantage from transmitting into the ground or into the atmosphere?

This message seems trollish but here goes...

It's supposed to point your signal towards the traffic coming at you.

or

It's supposed to be straight up when you're rolling double nickels.

A trucker that does installs mentioned that it should be tilted no more then 15 degrees forward. He also believes SWR is the end all of measurements!

So, the signal does not radiate 90 degrees to the vertical antenna? I really don't understand wave propogation from an antenna.
I am not trolling, I'm really trying to get an explanation on how it works and why they tilt them forward.

You are right that the antenna, for maximum range, shold be vertical. But that is just science and this is trucking. If some CB witchdoctor told a trucker his trucking pay would double if he held magic beans in his pocket there would be legions of truckers walking around with beans in their pockets.

Never once have I seen any tilted antennas setup to be vertical while driving, but all of the Billy Bigriggers with tilted antennas claim that is the object of the exercise. I guess they want to pay some CB withdoctor for the advice but they are too busy to look at the antenna while rolling.

Antenna signals propigate with either vertical or horizontal polarization. The more you tilt the CB antenna the shorter the range, but that's just a rumor started by electrical enginners so it's not as true as a rumor from a high school dropout with a chain drive wallet.

IOW, tilting it forward by that much ensures it will become vertical due to windloads over a certain speed.

No. It means the idiot who tilted the antenna forward thinks it makes him look cool. This would be the same type of individual who spends $80+ on an fancy antenna that claims it can handle 2000 watts then hooks it up to his 5 watt Radio Shack radio

I think if the guy transmitting and the guy receiving were using the same polarization it would not matter much if the antenna was vertical or horizontal.

Notice you don't see commercial AM radio stations tilting their antenna to either bias the direction their signal travels or to increase range, and their revenue depends on audience numbers.. Tilted antennas are like crop circles, half the believers think it's important for one reason , the other half of the believers think it's important for another reason, and the truth isn't important to any of the believers. Somewhere some CB witchdoctor is convincing a high school dropout that taping a packet of miracle prayer water to the radio will boost range and make him invisible to police radar.

At short enough range that is certainly true. However, most CB antennas aren't tilted and the tilters are almost always using illegal, high-power amplifiers as well as the antenna voodoo.

The radiated signal is not perpendicular to the radiating element.
Rather, it is at an angle slightly less than perpendicular, the actual angle dependent on the length of the radiating element, the general quality of the ground plane and any detuning factors in the near field of the antenna. This is known as the angle of elevation. Tipping the antenna forward does indeed bring the main node of the radiated signal closer to the horizontal, enhancing short-range communications.

Okay, assuming that is true, what would be the best angle from vertical for

I've been looking at police cars, highway patrol cars, etc, and all of their antennas that have to receive and transmit are vertical. I'd have to agree with Scott that someone did it once and someone else thought it looked cool, then some enterprising antenna manufacturer and cb shops came up with the idea of selling antennas that are too long for common semi mounting because a lot of uneducated or lack opf critical thinking ability truckers would fall for that crap. There's a sucker born every minute as the saying goes. Kind of like all the people that voted for Obama...

I agree. I spent four years in communications in the Army and twenty two years in radio broadcasting and I've never seen nor heard of tilting an antenna forward until I got into trucking.

Reread my original.. the angle is dependent on various factors. Suggest you utilize the "try and see" method, also known as "trial and error."

Notice you don't see operators in other fields that depend on maximum antenna performance and range using this "shoot it out of the tip" technique to get more range. Tilted antennas are the baggy pants of the trucking world. Few truck drivers need to be convinced that some stupid teen thug walking around in pants 12 sizes too big and his undies pulled up to his collar bone looks retarded and signals a twit with self-defeating habits. Yet, the same people do their saggy pants impersonation with tilted antennas, chain-drive wallets, shark teeth grills and being the last dumbass on the road to turn on their headlights.

If the guy that invented tilted antennas told the Billy Bigriggers he did it because he thought truckers were too dumb to catch the joke they would still claim it improves CB operation, even though by definition they never hear what their radio sounds like at it's maximum trasnmitting range. If the truth be told hearing other radios at maximum range is far more useful than transmitting to maximum range, but not if you are in bullwagon number 2 following 8 feet behind bullwagon number one and both of you have 1,000 wat linears melting the airwaves.

My favorite Obama joke to date:
http://americandigest.org/mt-archives/driveby/guy_goes_into_a_bar_there.php

A guy walks into a bar with a robor bartender.
The robot says, "What will you have?"

The guy says, "Martini."

The robot brings back the best martini ever and says to the man, "What's your IQ?"

The guy says, "168." The robot then proceeds to talk about physics, space exploration and medical technology. The guy leaves, but he is curious.

So he goes back into the bar. The robot bartender says, "What will you have?"

The guy says, "Martini."

Again, the robot makes a great martini gives it to the man and says, "What's your IQ?"

The guy says, "100." The robot then starts to talk about Nascar, Budweiser and John Deere tractors.

The guy leaves, but finds it very interesting, so he thinks he will try it one more time. He goes back into the bar.

The robot says, "What will you have?"

The guy says, "Martini," and the robot brings him another great martini. The robot then says, "What's your IQ?"

The guy says, "Uh, about 50."

The robot leans in real close and says,

"So, you people still happy you voted for Obama?"

My wand, my stones, and me

Stones have energies that many witches learn to work with, myself among them. That is not to say that I'm an expert by any means but I do have my favorites. I especially like to shove a large amethyst up my ass while pleasuring myself with my staff.

I learned very young about the energies of stones; my mother used to shove small stones, then larger ones, up my rectum. eventually I grew to enjoy the practice.

Every spring as I rearrange the stone borders around my own flower beds that the winter sprites have tumbled about under the snow. How 2 stones could sit comfortably next to each other one year and it be unfathomable the following spring how that could be the case I don't know. Like I said, winter sprites and ground fairies.

Sometimes ground fairies visit me and perform cunnilingus on me while my husband rapes his decrepit daddy. My beshert is a horny and fat pervert, so dad's screams fall on deaf ears.

Sometimes the stones fall right out of my rectum. Methinks it might have something to do with the fact that I have tried to impose my will on the stones rather than being receptive to their energies - Time to go commune with Mother Earth.

My staff has a crowning piece of a quartz point and inset cabachons of 4 black opals, 2 labradorite, 2 leopard jasper, 4 onyx, 2 garnets and 1 each of amethyst, lapis lazuli, malachite, citrine, amber and carnelian all of course chosen for traditional properties which I'll expound on more in another post about my staff. The handle of my athame has been inset with a large cabachon of labradorite bordered by twisted gold wire. Needless to say, all of this feels just great when rubbed against my 12" manclit.

One of the things I love about my manclit is how the purple head mushrooms to larger than life proportions and it seems to hint of mystery and things to be captured just beyond the veil.

More later. I have a date with my lesbian lover Francis and my beshert thinks I am going to market. He's such a fool!

Roger sent away for an inflatable doll (Hi! I'm Karen, the 38-22-36 doll that every real man should own. Inflate me!)

She arrived in a plain brown envelope.

Roger spent all afternoon blowing her up. In full balloon she was an extraordinarily beautiful creature.

Roger placed her sitting up on the living-room couch. He had dressed her with a see-through blouse, short skirt, and blond wig. Sitting down beside her, he mussed up her hair, tore a provocative rip in her blouse, and hiked up her skirt. He put his hand on her soft thigh. He sat with her for a long time, waiting for Lloyd to deliver a pizza and see what a beauty that Roger had beside him. He knew that Lloyd would be jealous.
Lloyd rang the doorbell and Roger let him in.

Roger introduced Karen to Lloyd, expecting Lloyd to be jealous.

"Hi, Lloyd," she said. "I'm Karen."

Roger smiled a smug smile until Karen said, "Will you take me home with you, Lloyd? I need a sausage, not a pepperoni."

Roger is still in litigation with the online provider and is demanding a refund of the money he spent for "Karen".

Why would you ask such a question here? The answer is readily available on the web sites of the three networks you mentioned.

1430. how can we operate outr CB radios mobile??/

>>>You can be assured that all planned developments will contain antenna restrictions. It is in the land >>>developers best interest and makes sense. They do not want 100 ft. towers springing up. In fact, there is a >>>phrase about operating rf transmitters, excluding the obvious garage door openers etc. Is there room for >>>verticals and wire antennas? I would think the answer would be yes.

They don't even want antennas on vehicles. Not even if you're just visiting.

Before, I have had my vehivle towed for violating homeowner association rules and had to pay so much money to get it back out of impound, money that I couldn't afford to pay, which ruined my credit for the rest of my life. And I don't even live in a homeowner association. I was just visiting my mom there. And that place did not have a homeowner association when she moved into the trailer park. It was added later.

And when I visited at my uncle's house in a different city, the hoa complained to him about the CB antenna on the car in his driveeway, fined him, and said it would be towed away if they ever saw it there again.

He does NOT have a car with a CB antenna. That was MY car. So far, I have never ever signed any agreement with any homeowner association at all. I live on non-hoa non-CC&R land.

What gives you nazi hoas the right to tow MY LEGALLY REGISTERED CAR for violating hoa rules when I NEVER EVER SIGNED ANY fricking agreement with any one of you?

Just because I'm visiting one of my relatives, none of whom could find any place without a hoa attached to ity anymore.

And no you can not "just buy a house without any hoa or cc&Rs".

Several counties' laws through zoning law and other law now requires any non-hoa non-CC&R homes to have permanent CC&Rs requiring joining a hoa added to it before the owners of the non-CC&R non hoa houses are allowed to sell them.

So the very act of purchasing a non-hoa non-CC&R home automatically makes it a CC&R hoa home.

And besides, as I said, I don't live in a hoa cc&R home. I cirrently DO live in a non-hoa non-CC&R home.

So how is purchasing one, if I could, which I can't, because of the newer laws, solve that problem???

I was STILL towed for violating homeowner association rules of places I was visiting when I do NOT live in a homeiwner association and have NOT signed any agreements at all with any homeowner associations.

I have NEVER signed any agreements with the hoas who towed me.

The traler park did npt have a visitors parking area because the hoa owner of the trailer park required all visitors to park in the driveways of the person they were visiting.

My uncle's house did not have visitor parking area because it was his own driveway in his own house and that city has laws which say it is against the law ro park on the street at all, either side, no matter what time of day or night or what reason.

So it is now very very clear that the FCC has comitted the federal crime of fraud when they fraudently said that hams "can just operate mobile".

You can NOT operate mobile when your car keeps getting towed for violating the homeowner associations' rules of "no external antennas allowed on vehicles" and "no ham or cb antennas allowed on vehicles" when you DON'T EVEN BELONG to any hoa and NEVER SIGNED ANY agreement with any hoa at all.

Just because you're visiting family and friends who live in homneowners associations, the only places left anymore.

And no, you can't sue. 1. It costs much more to sue them for it than it does to pay to get your car out of impound for violating homeowner association rules that you never agreed to and that the homeowner association doesn't have to tell you what the rules are since you're a visitor instead of a resident."

And people have spent over twenty thousand dollars in legal fees just trying to defend their right to park in their own driveways when driveway parking was allowed but the rules of the two hoas in charge of the place conflicted with each other.

2. Most lawyers will not take such cases anymore because they will be disbarred for doing so, since it is a "conflict of interest" since most are now required by the counties,cities, and/or state to have agreements with the hoas and hoa developers to defend them.

3. There have been so many lawsuits brought against hoas that most courts are now refusing to hear the cases involving hoas unless they're sure they can rule in favor of the homeowners' associations and against the homeowners.

And in California, because of the number of hoa court cases filed, California, by law. ruled that all hoa disputes must now be settled only through arbitration and not in the courts because it was overburdening the couyrt system.

I haven't even visited some of my family in years.

I'm sure their hoas would definitely tow my car and/or fined them or me for it ljust like all the other ones did.

And I can't afford such tow bills to get the car out of impound, or the fines.

Now the question is WHY did the FCC commit the federal crime of fraud by fraudently telling radio operators that they "can just operate mobile"? WHY ?????

And how do we operate out CB radios mobile when our cars keep getting towed and impounded by homeowners associations we never ever made ANY agreement at all with since we live in non-hoa non-CC&R houses?

And you don't even need an antenna on your car for it to happen. This issue is BIGGER than just radios.

It also happens if you just have "amateur radio plates" on your car without any antennas or radios at on or in your car.

Because homeowners associations don't like amateur radio locense plates on vehicles either, even if there's not any antenna or radio in the vehicle.

They also tow visitors for violating the homeowner association rules of what color car you are and are not allowed to have, what make and model of car you are and are not allowed to have, what type of vehicle you are and are not allowed to have.

What gives you nazi homeowner associations the right to tow my car and have it impounded just because it's blue, a color you don't allow under hoa rules, when I NEVER EVER SIGNED ANY agreement with you at all???????

Now there'sd even some municipalities requiring mandatory for homeowners to simultaneously join three homeowners associations for the same house!!!!!!!

Of course, the rules for each condlict with the other two.

One only allows your house to be painted blue because all the other colors are ugly and bring down property values while blue is a pretty color that brings up property values and the hoa rules specifically say "homes are not allowed to be painted any ugly color".

while the second hoa says houses are only allowed to be painted red because all other colors are ugly and bring down property balues while red is a pretty color that brings up property valuesd and the hoa rules specifically say "homes are not allowed to be painted any ugly color".

while the third hoa says "houses are only allowed to be painted green because all other colors are ugly and bring property values down while green is a pretty color that brings up property values and the hoa rules specifically say "homes are not allowed to be painted any color".

If I lived in a home requiring three hoas like many do now, which I don't, I would paint the one house red, blue, and green to follow all hoa rules except that wouldn't work either since doing so also violates all of the hoas' rules.

You CAN't paint it red while not painting it red, or paint it blue while not painting it blue or painting it green while not painting it green.

hmmm... Since I would be getting fined and the house having a lien put on it either way in that case, I may as well go all out and paint it all three colors that are both not allowed to have that color painted on it and required to be the ONLY color the house is allowed to be painted.

On second thought, in that case, I may as well go all the way and paint it in glow-at-night colors purple and pink with polka dots

I depends on the details of the mounting and the ground plane surrounding the antenna.

If they are picky about it, someone can walk down the road a few hundred yards ahead of the truck with a field strength meter and call back with the numbers as they tweak them.

lonely

newsgroups.
Yet another person has added an OS/2 newsgroup to the distribution of an thread that has no OS/2 content. Welcome to the trolls list, LeFlour.

Classic ambiguity; are you talking about spaghetti, vermicelli, rigatoni, or some other form of pasta, James? And what does your non sequitur have to do with OS/2, James? ANd who is "Christmas Jew", James? There is nobody in this newsgroup using that alias.

I see that you completely evaded the matter that you ironically need to use a Gigalo. You also evaded the matter than /dev/null isn't the same thing as alt.test, James. You also evaded the matter than you chose the newsgroup distribution for the "Gigalo Groupie" thread, and yet complained about one of the newsgroups in which it is appearing! Classic inconsistency.

What does your classic unsubstantiated and erroneous claim have to do with OS/2, dizzy? There is nothing kooky about an OS/2 user reading an OS/2 newsgroup and expecting to find OS/2 content in that newsgroup. There is something plenty kooky about non-OS/2 users continually posting non-OS/2 content to an OS/2 newsgroup, dizzy, especially over a thousand times. Of course, logic has never been your strong suit, dizzy.

>>>So is he violating the law? After all, a ham license grants one thing, and one thing only - the right to transmit on frequencies allocated to the amateur radio service. Nothing else. It doesn't grant a right to listen on non-ham frequencies, but here in America, that right is presumed for everyone, not just hams! (With the exception of cellular) So this non-ham with the amateur transceiver under his dash, a rig that receives police frequencies. Where does he stand? And if HE has no right to listen to police, then a ham license doesn't grant that right, since it authorizes only transmission in ham bands, but does not address reception. If that fella has the right to listen to police frequencies, then the scanner law is invalid for everyone, not just hams, and should not be on the >>>books anywhere.

The federal ECPA law which states it shall not be unlawful to monitor police transmissions.

Federal law supercedes any local or state law.

Federal pre-emption.

Actually, companies can do just that.
Being owned by a French company means nothing.
If the company policy says you may not use two way radios on that property,then you can be charged with trespassing for doing so.

Can a company deny an officer of the law entry because he is armed?
Yes they can. Companies that produce hazardous materials do it all the time.
I do not know the legality behind the issue of a search warrant, if a company can then deny entrance as long as the officers are armed.
After all, a company has the legal right to protect itself and it's employees from possible harm by outsiders who could possibly ignite the place on fire.

That is if you can even transmit on 20 meters.

Running 20 meters from a quarter wave two meter mag mount antenna on the trunk of that junk car in your back yard doesn't work too well, does it Mark?

Of course nobody would QSO with you anyway.....

Not in my house. Without my permission to enter they would have to obtain a search warrant served by an actual officer of the law.
They are private citizens. They have no authority.
When the FCC makes a bust, they do so with the local cops who do the actual charging.

Simply by the fact that you own an RF device does not legally grant them entry. An inspection is not probable cause to enter without a warrant.

I'm sure some have been busted for illegal radio uses and fined but that was only because the judge wasn't educated on the subject.

After all, just how many inspections can a handfull of people do?

In some areas of the country, failure to abide by Company Rules can result in the CEO calling in the Police, who can charge you with Malicious Trespass. The police can then confiscate your radio and, if you resist, they can charge you with Resisting Law Enforcement, which can be a low-grade Felony charge. And subsequent to an Arrest, according to the Supreme Court, the officers are then allowed to do do a search of your vehicle.

Federal Officers are obliged by law to turn off their radios when on private company properties where the CEO has banned the use of two way radios.
If the U.S. Marshals refuse to do so, the CEO can then call in the local Prosecuting Attorney who can then cite the Federal Officers and confiscate their radios if necessary.
The Prosecutor, if the CEO files charges, can also cite the Federal Officers for carrying weapons on restricted property...usually a misdemeanor that results on only a small fine and thirty days in jail. They only have to surrender their weapons for thirty days and will have them returned upon release.
The law also states that the local Sheriff MUST record the serial numbers of the Federal Officers' weapons and that it is incumbent upon the Sheriff of the County to secure these weapons "in a safe and secure manner". Since these weapons are Federal Property, and should the Sheriff fail in his duties, said Sheriff can be charged with Neglect of Office and can be subject to criminal charges.

Little known fact is that the Feds lack arrest authority on private property. They MUST call local law enforcement to make an arrest and the Feds have to show a Warrant, which the local PD is obliged by law to verify before taking anybody into custody.

> Actually, companies can do just that.
> Being owned by a French company means nothing.

The same holds for cell phones, which ARE two way radios.
This as been upheld in several court cases, such as Detective Lon Smith vs. Walmart in 2006.
Walmart Security confiscated the Detective's cell phone when the Detective was calling for backup when needing assistance with his arrest of a group of Gypsies who had stolen several leather coats. Walmart security confiscated the Detective's cell phone before he could complete the call for backup and the Court ruled that this act was well within the paramaters of the rules and regulations set forth by Walmart. The Detective was subsequently terminated for violating company rules.

> Can a company deny an officer of the law entry because he is armed?

Companies that have high security in mind can not only bar law enforcement officers from entering their sites, they can use physical force to disarm any sworn, armed law enforcement officer who demands to enter their sites. Some companies can even have the law enforcement officers' squad cars towed to a private storage facility and charge a Storage Fee to the agency in question.
In fact, in many states the Company can, if the Agency does not pay the storage fee within 72 hours, legally dismantle the squad car, part for part, and sell the items in auction.
However, Federal Law prohibits the private company from selling any firearms or ammunition that may be in the car. That, by law, must be inventoried and returned to the Agency within 45 days of the confiscation.
Also, as per a mandate put in place by the Attorney General's office in 2007, all emergency lighting and sirens must be returned to the Agency in question.

Also, posession and use of CB radios in Manufacturing areas is no longer a chargeable offense. The Teamsters Union petitoned for, and was successful in their efforts to force the FCC to change that portion of the Law.

This change, however, applies to trucks that are over ten tons gross vehicle weight. It does not apply to pickup trucks or most vans and it does not apply to passenger vehicles.

I hope by posting this that I can make radioguy aware of the new laws, Federal and State.
I want him and his followers to be on firm, legal ground when reading these posts.

Most interesting. Thanks for the information. Mr. Platt should be along soon to kick your ass. He is a self appointed and educated criminal attorney.

However, I will beg to differ with you on some points. Such as the walmart affair. As walmart has no posted signs about cell phone usage, walmart can not legally confiscate any person's cell phone for any reason. The security person should have been charged with interfering with a police officer.

You state that federal officers can not make busts on private property.
Care to back that up with the actual law cite?
Seems to me they do it on a daily basis.

"I'm a federal officer sir, here to arrest you, but I can't do that right here because federal law says I can't you bust you at your desk. Would you mind stepping outside onto the street?"

Why, N0VFP, Technician class Lloyd Austin Davies, of Athens, AL, you want to get on 20 meters without benefit of a General license? Time to let Laura Smith of the FCC Enforcement Bureau know about your intentions!

Actually NO, the FCC would bring a Federal Marshal with them to do the Heavy Lifting, in such a case. The FCC Field Agent does NOT have Police Powers and therefor requires the Federal Marshal to do the arresting, or if it is a on a boat or Marine vessel, they would get a USCG Officer.
they would only use the local Police, if no Federal Marshal was available, and the need was critical, and urgent.

A reTired FCC Field Agent... who has called on both the Federal Marshals and USCG, to provide the Muscle on various occasions.

The question is, can an FCC inspector legally enter a home on the ruse to inspect an RF device, with the home owner forced to comply?
Not in my house you won't. I don't give a damn how many marshals you got with you. No search warrant, no entry. The court would side with me.
If the lower court sided with you, then I'd have to take the issue to a higher court before you got a dime.

See the 4th amendment. "Citizens have the right to be secure in their home....".

Would you allow a cop to enter your home because he wanted to see if you had any drugs with no search warrant?
This is precisely why we have the 4th amendment.

I am sure that radioguy is well aware of the rules.

Section 97.1 13(a)(4) of the FCC rules prohibits "messages in codes or ciphers intended to obscure the meaning thereof, except as otherwise provided herein.. ."

Therefore the use of something like Morse code is perfectly legal Morse code is not ciphering, it is a valid means of communication.

These people need to have their butts kicked hard in court.
No HOA has authority to persecute someone who has not signed the agreement.
They sure as hell don't have authority outside of their property, which is what a public street is.
If a judge is siding with the HOA, then that means the judge is taking kickbacks from them.

You need to research the state law on what all it allows an HOA to enforce.
That clause you give sounds fishy and may not be legal.

What do they do when a cop shows up at a house? Have his car towed and fine him for the infractions?

Here's something you can try. Gather up 20 or so CB'ers and have them come park in front of your house on the street. Make sure they all have visibile antennas. When the tow truck shows up, advise the HOA people he's violating the clause because of his two way radios. Not to mention his 'Obnoxious activity'. Then, call the cops and file charges of grand theft auto on them.

BTW, aren't HOA's requried to have elections for the board of directors? What's preventing you from getting involved and getting on the board?

My brother is on his HOA's board now and he wasn't even looking for the job.

It's time you took legal action these assholes.

If this is in arizona here's some legal information for you.

Section 1. Title 33, chapter 16, article 1, Arizona Revised Statutes, is amended by adding section 33-1815, to read:

33-1815. Community authority over public roadways

Notwithstanding any provision in the community documents, an association has no authority over and shall not regulate any roadway, easement or other area for which the ownership or use has been dedicated to a governmental entity or that is otherwise under the legal authority of a governmental entity. An association has jurisdiction over only those roadways, easements and other areas that remain under the ownership of the association.

So if you are now fined by the HOA, take the bastards to court and challenge.
IOW, the HOA can not legally fine anyone, resident or not, for any parking infraction on a public roadway. Even if they use the "obnoxious activity" clause.
They would have to prove that the roadway is their property and has never been "dedicated" as public use. If the community is not gated, nor have the streets marked as "private property", they are screwed.

You need to get a life if all you have to do is listen to all 40 channels for a cuss word. 2 meters is just like CB without the cuss words, although I have heard the S word and an F bomb or two...

Rather ironic, coming from the person making ridiculous

What does your classic unsubstantiated and erroneous claim

Classic illogic. Suppose Person A lives in Atlanta and Person B, a former high school classmate of Person A, lives in Seattle. Further suppose that Person A runs into Person B while shopping at an Atlanta mall and asks the question "What are you doing in Atlanta?" You conclude that the question represents a strategy to keep Person B out of Atlanta. What a ridiculous conclusion. See what I mean about logic not being your strong suit, dizzy?

Although Federal law says it is ok to listen to police transmissions - many states have laws about scanners mounted inside vehicles. This is to prevent a criminal from using a scanner in the commission of a crime - good idea.

And those states - just about every one of them, exempts licensed hams from those laws. The main reason is that many mobile ham radios are, by design, able to receive those frequenices. My thinking is that if the licensed ham were to use that knowledge in the commission of a crime, then his radios would also be considered burglary tools and he would have them confiscated just like any other scanner.

Hams also do so much public service and EMCOM, that the states realize that in some cases they may need to listen to public service frequenices in their vehicles.

And yes, this scanner law does exist and the fact that licensed hams are exempt does not invalidate the law for everyone else.

The interpretation as to what "mounted in a vehicle" means, is best determined by individual state statutes. In Florida, for instance, mounted means operating from the vehicle's battery power and an outside antenna attached. Handhelds are legal. Or that was the way it was the last I knew.

The federal ECPA law which states it shall not be unlawful to monitor police transmissions.

Federal law supercedes any local or state law.

Federal pre-emption.

1610. H-P employees,stockholders ,clients and Security Clearance officers : Open letter , questions and warnings about the next CEO

The choice of Leo Apotheker as new CEO of H-P by its Board of Directors does not inspire any confidence and already there are a lot of lies in the air.

a) Is well known within the Industry that the CEO of Oracle and friend of Apotheker , Ellison, wanted for a long time to bring down the price of H-P stock so that he could buy its assets and stock cheap, and many consider the "Hurd -Fischer" affair a total fabrication to that end.

Of course these 2 will try even to dismiss they know each other, the fact is that Oracle wants H-P and cheap.

b) while at SAP and before his resignation , Apotheker was found to slow releases of certain software products that later Oracle got to the markets first, and Apotheker and Ellison are very good friends, no matter what they say they share many interests ,partners and friends in their circles in Tel-Aviv (at least one , Apotheker , is an honorary citizen of that Middle East Country)

c) is well known in the European Union that Apotheker is a member and big supporter of certain militant orthodox groups from the Middle East and he (as well as Ellison and many others) are special advisers to some members of the Intelligence , Military ,Finance and Government of that small Middle East country.

d) Apotheker holds interests in various Venture Capital and Investments companies that could get special contracts and long term deals from H-P , deals that could be very bad financial decisions for the Stockholders,Retirees and Workers of H-P and a huge conflict of interest.

e) the employees (as well as retirees , bond and stockholders) from H-P will have to look very closely at these key assets and issues :

1) All cash, debt and reserves of H-P , so that well known Money
Managers and Private Equity friends and partners of Apotheker do not get special deals and long term "adviser and management" contracts with huge fees and bonuses.

2) new products, software and hardware, do not get postponed so that Oracle or others can get them to market first, like many say was the case in SAP.

3) the vital new line of Palm and mobile software/hardware technologies do not end up creating income or royalties for the friends of Apotheker in the Middle East and others .

4) Patents and other assets do not get entangled with these special interests from the Middle East or some workers inside H-P that are from that group and with the same agenda , and which many say were the ones who pushed the most to have Apotheker nominated, a take-over from within.

5) Involve H-P in bringing into the Company or the USA workforce certain members of Apotheker's circle with the excuse that they are the only ones that can do certain jobs, Apotheker is going to try to bring into H-P his neocon team to slowly take over key positions and start controlling the company, and will the employees and stockholders inside H-P wait and watch the store ? with the Rule of Law ?

f) as H-P holds key Military,Security,Intelligence and Law Enforcement Contracts in the USA , the CEO of the company should and must have a full security clearance from the Government, and in my opinion, the new appointed CEO of H-P is not fit to get them, but will Washington D.C. make an exception and break its own rules ?

This appointment shows huge gaps in the future success of H-P and the country as a whole ,since H-P is a key company for the whole country, and now more so with new mobile solutions for the global markets ready to go in before the key 2010 Holiday season .

This appointment shows in my opinion a lot of "questions and weaknesses " with the Board of Directors, as well as an insult to many top executives in the Company, and stockholders must make sure their interests are not being harmed.

H-P Stockholders and employees must remember that the brand new SEC regulations let 3% of the stock, investors or groups of shareholders that have hold the stock for at least 3 years , to put candidates on proxy statements , nominate at least one director and as much as 25 % of the Board, etc., so since the most important thing is to make sure HP reaches its full potential right now with all its software and hardware components , there are many options and active choices to defend this vital USA asset, the key is to speak up before its too late.

One of his many lies is the one about an ordinance that disallows a homeowner from having vehicles if they are "Three model years or more" of age. He left out the rest of the definition in which the ordinance states that the vehicles must also be parked "in view of a public right-of-way and are inoperable."
The guy is simply trying to stir the CB types with his silliness.

Anybody that starts their post with an "X-NO-ARCHIVE" is a troll and needs to be ignored. It must be nice to be able to sit around the abode all day and think of this silly stuff. Also notice how he cross-posts the trolling to many news groups at the same time.

I agree with you.
I had long ago accused this person of being a Troll simply because it is so easy to see through his scat.

He apparently enjoys his forays of misinformation and lies.
One would think that he has too much time on his hands.

Apparently Mr. Radioguy has never excictuted heard of a Federal Warrant for Arrest, under Federal Law, served by US Marshals, who by their charter, have jurisdiction ANYWHERE in US Territory.... A US Marshal is the very LAST fellow you want after you, because he/she has CartBlanc in locating you, and serving the warrant that he/she is operating under.
You NEVER mess with a US Marshal, PERIOD....

I'm totally taking my CB with me on my next trip up to Toronto, and I'm going to say naughty words over the air! It'll be awesome!

Remember - the phrase that pays will be, "goat-felching cum slut". When you hear that, be sure to call someone who gives a fuck.

Oh, OK. Now it all makes sense.

So what happens if I stay, say, six feet on the American side of the border and broadcast dirty, filthy, horrible words into Canada with my CB?

It'd be pretty awesome if I could get a mountie to come right up to the border and glower at me while I do it. I might even do it several times so as to have mounties on demand, which may in fact be better than what the cable company offers in my area.

Do mounties get offended if you call them shit-slurping equine copulators?

Don't let Jeff Grant threaten you in email with turning you in to the Canadian authorities. Come drive down to Baltimore and get me, you stupid asshole!

Me thinks you need a new hobby, like police scanners. I've got a PRO-96, a PRO-106, a PRO-84 and a BC-245 all lined up on the windowsill for Halloween night. The 245's days are numbered by the wait for our county to go P-25...

That is about the most absurd and funniest thing I have heard yet. Morkie wouldn't know a "sesmis" wave from a doorknob, much less about it's "progation". What an idiot.

Mark wrote at qrz.com:

Well, now, Mark, that's interesting. A few questions:

What institution granted your degree, and what year?

What is the title of your Masters thesis?

Why do you hyphenate the word "geophysics?" It isn't hyphenated in normal usage. A geophysicist would know that.

What are "sesmis" waves? Or do you mean "seismic?" And how do they "progate?"

There's an old saying in baseball. You can bullshit the fans but you can't bullshit the players.

That wasn't even a good try, Mark.

HA-HA! I found a great big fat loophole in your reasoning, AND I'M GOING TO EXPLOIT IT FOR MY OWN NEFARIOUS ENDS. So there!

See, you said you were monitoring 40 channels AM - not FM, SSB, CW, or any other mode of communication! No tapbacks, you are stuck to AM for all eternity, my amusingly-delusional amigo! If you have lied to us and will monitor other modes, I am afraid that we will have to permanently take away that melon with the hole in it that you keep around for sexual intercourse purposes.

As promised previously on this very newsgroup, I used dirty words and filthy language on CB while I was up in Toronto yesterday.

It is with some regret that I note no mention of my repeated use of the phrase, "goat-felching cum slut" over Toronto's 11m airwaves. This catchy, family-oriented slogan had been tailored specifically for your appreciation and logging activities, bigbird, and mere words are unsuitable for conveying my disappointment at the lack of a QSO, let alone a QSL.

My border crossing at Niagara Falls was uneventful. Perhaps Industry Canada was short-staffed this weekend and unable to forward your complaints to the appropriate authorities on either side of the border in a timely manner. Perhaps you were sleeping off the stupor that I imagine one's body would be in after a weekend of sexual debauchery with farmyard poultry and could not contact them. I just don't know.

But what is evident, bigbird, is that I remain a scofflaw. A ruffian of radio, the mischievous Marconi of the Citizens' Band. Swooping down upon you from the ionosphere without warning, causing apoplexy when you switch on the radio.

And I shall truly remain so, now and evermore.

Yours,

- J.

Amateur Radio Newsline Report 1727 - September 17 2010

RADIO LAW: NY STATE HAM WINS FOR HAM RADIO IN TROY CITY COURT
A New York State ham ticketed under the states driving while using a cellphone law has won his case in court. This, after a judge affirms that ham radio gear is not hone the same as a mobile phone. We have more in this report:
--
Back on May 30th Steve Bozak, WB2IQU, of Clifton Park, New York, was operating his station while mobile when an officer in Troy New York pulled him over and cited him under the states cellular phone ban while driving law. Bozak, whose mobile was a hand held transceiver protested. Rather than paying the $100 fine he decided to take the matter to court. When he initially lost in Traffic Court he appealed the matter to the Troy City Court. It was there on September 8th that judge Matthew Turner found in Bozak's favor and dismissed the charge.
In rendering his decision the judge found that the Vehicle and Traffic Law defines a Mobile Telephone as a device used by subscribers and other users of wireless telephone service to access such services. Also that a Wireless Telephone Service is defined as two-way real time voice telecommunications service that is interconnected to a public switched telephone network and is provided by a commercial mobile radio service.
The judge then continued by noting that a review of 47 C.F.R.20.3 reveals that Citizens Band Radio Service and by inference Amateur Radio as well is defined as a private mobile radio service not commercial mobile radio service. Therefore, the court found that the use of an amateur radio device does not fit the definition of a mobile telephone as defined under the Vehicle and Traffic Law and granted Bozak's motion to dismiss.
For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Bruce Tennant, K6PZW, in Los Angeles.
At airtime, it is not known if the city of Troy will appeal the judges decision in Bozak's favor or will simply let the matter drop. And while there have been several attempts at getting the law changed to specifically exclude radio amateurs operating mobile, to date there has been no interest on the part of the legislature to do so. This means that any amateur cited under it has to challenge it as Seve Bozak did or simply pay the fine. (KS4BZ, others)

Which illustrates what I am always bitching about.....The authorities will beat you down with your own money! They will do something unconstitutional to you, and if you want to protest it, you have to spend your own time and money to do so. And then, they will appeal and/or do the same thing to the next guy, and use the taxpayers money to finance their transgressions. So, the citizenry doesn't stand a chance of a snowball in hell of ever getting on top.

1694. FCC NPRM 10-110

Hello all,

Just a general service announcement re. FCC NPRM 10-119. There could be some major changes to Part 95, particularly re. 11-meter CB; Things like decreasing allowable power and prohibiting directional antennas. While I certainly wouldn't want the power limits raised from their current level, I don't want them decreased either. Prohibiting directional antennas appears just as troublesome. On the bright side, they also seek comments re. the 155 mile limit which might indicate that they may be willing to de-criminalize a natural human response to propagation on HF.

The ARRL has already commented on this NPRM to the FCC. I would suggest that a better route would be to draft a form letter to all those candidates that are up for election (& sending multiple flyers to our mailboxes) and urge them to bring up your concerns to the FCC.

Here's the FCC link:

Remember how the amateur radio vanity call system came about; ONE (1) letter from a concerned ham to his local elected representative.

with a standard 4 watt cb radio? I don't think so.
to dim the lights llike that you'd have to have one hell of an amplifier.

Since a CB license isn't even required, how can the cops enforce the law?

Sometimes the computer that a web site runs on malfunctions.

Sometimes the network connecting that computer to the Internet goes down for a while.

The URL you type is merely a convenience that's easier to remember than the numerical Internet Protocol (IP) address the Internet actually uses for communication between your computer and the sites you visit. Your computer accesses a Domain Name Server (DNS) to look up the IP address for the web site, much as you would use the white pages to discover someone's telephone number. Sometimes the listings on the DNS are corrupted.

Sometimes the operator of a web site doesn't renew the site registration and the site simply disappears.

I just checked with the Windows XP command prompt's ping and tracert commands and neither can detect bigradios.com

My memory isn't particularly fresh on the Kaypro line of computers, but I don't recall any computers during that period having software INCLUDED WITH THE SYSTEM that could access anything online at all. I spent a FEW minutes refreshing my memory about the Kaypro II, and I don't even see indication it came with a modem. I imagine it MIGHT have had a serial pert that could connect to an external modem though. The displays on those things weren't much bigger than the main screen on a present day Nook book reader.

I was using an Apple][then an Apple //e during that period. The modem and the terminal mode program I was using had to be purchased separately. The first programs I saw that had even a vague resemblence to a web site was a purely local application that ran on the Macintosh.

So should I use my SE/30 instead?

There are no CPM browsers. Try your Commodore 64 instead.

OK, I've got Contiki running under MESS' C=64 emulation on my Macbook Pro. I think that'll get me on the Intarnuts; at least, that's what Google says.

BTW: what's a browser?

?Hello John,

First, get rid of Windoze. You'll find Linux far less inviting to nasty malware.

As to alternators, you'll eventually learn there are far more efficient methods of passing traffic that is less susceptible to jamming than a lot of power.

Various waveforms and frequency hopping work quite well indeed. You can work well below ambient noise - be it qrm or qrn - and keep right on running ;)

?Hello John,

Well, Windows has disabled my CA security suite. Seems they don't like stuff running. In any even, the only thing I use Windows for now is the newsgroups (which are essentially dead). I'm not particularly worried. I'm about ready to tell Linux to take over both partitions and reformat from NTFS to Unix file system. Then there is less worry. And I like Ubuntu as I no longer have to deal with the command line interface. Much easier as I approach retirement.

As to more watts. Sounds good, perhaps, to old-timers (such as myself) ... but ... until you've gone head to head in a competition, you just don't know.

Head to head. Trying long-haul HF and props were lousy. Competitor asked to try the next day as they could not contact each other at all. Our radio, sitting quietly, was, in reality, going ping, ping, ping .... finding the best frequency. Even then signals were buried in noise. Pick up the mic. "you guys want to try again tomorrow? Competition has requested same."

Back comes the booming voice absolutely free of any interference "Sure. What time?".

Remember your gps operates below noise levels. There are digital signals that can operate nearly 30 dB below noise. 30 dB is a lot. 1000 times, be be precise. That can require a lot of pills - especially if the original signal is, say, 40 or 100 watts. That 100 watts would require 100,000 watts into the same antenna using AM or SSB to equal that lowly 150 watts. A lot of pills. Then again, signals at the noise level that can be copied without the digital interface would be CW. Usually you are going to want at least 10 or 12 dB above noise to copy voice. Make that 1,000,000 watts. A ton of pills. And I suspect that even CB will be going digital in the future. Just far more effective.

There is free software out there if you care to try some SWLing for digital signals. PSK, Baudot (rtty), and much, much more. You simply place your computer mic near the radio's speaker .... and watch the signals ... and watch the letters pop out clearly from a very weak signal. FLDIGI comes to mind. Do a Google search on it. I've got it in Vista and in Linux.

Best regards from Rochester, NY
Jim

?Hello John,

Well, Windows has disabled my CA security suite. Seems they don't like stuff running. In any even, the only thing I use Windows for now is the newsgroups (which are essentially dead). I'm not particularly worried. I'm about ready to tell Linux to take over both partitions and reformat from NTFS to Unix file system. Then there is less worry. And I like Ubuntu as I no longer have to deal with the command line interface. Much easier as I approach retirement.

As to more watts. Sounds good, perhaps, to old-timers (such as myself) ... but ... until you've gone head to head in a competition, you just don't know.

Head to head. Trying long-haul HF and props were lousy. Competitor asked to try the next day as they could not contact each other at all. Our radio, sitting quietly, was, in reality, going ping, ping, ping .... finding the best frequency. Even then signals were buried in noise. Pick up the mic. "you guys want to try again tomorrow? Competition has requested same."

Back comes the booming voice absolutely free of any interference "Sure. What time?".

And the competition couldn't even connect. The look on their faces was priceless. Nothing like digital.

Remember your gps operates below noise levels. There are digital signals that can operate nearly 30 dB below noise. 30 dB is a lot. 1000 times, be be precise. That can require a lot of pills - especially if the original signal is, say, 40 or 100 watts. That 100 watts would require 100,000 watts into the same antenna using AM or SSB to equal that lowly 150 watts. A lot of pills. Then again, signals at the noise level that can be copied without the digital interface would be CW. Usually you are going to want at least 10 or 12 dB above noise to copy voice. Make that 1,000,000 watts. A ton of pills. And I suspect that even CB will be going digital in the future. Just far more effective.

There is free software out there if you care to try some SWLing for digital signals. PSK, Baudot (rtty), and much, much more. You simply place your computer mic near the radio's speaker .... and watch the signals ... and watch the letters pop out clearly from a very weak signal. FLDIGI comes to mind. Do a Google search on it. I've got it in Vista and in Linux.

Best regards from Rochester, NY
Jim

I just have to ask, what's wrong with this picture?
At the ripe old age of 20, this "kid" holds 4 different degrees including law and medicine?
Not to mention he somehow manages to hold some kind of political office he was elected to?

Albeit, the kid was 15 when he graduated from highschool. Not all that unusual. Still, 4 different degrees in a mere 5 years? I think not.

I know, right? It's like when I first got herpes; there was all the itching and scratching and scabs and nobody letting me anywhere near their genitals - but now it's like I have my own little crotch-based entertainment center! No more dull evenings for me in front of Will & Grace!

Also, Valtrex goes awesome with a turpentine chaser.

'i have an old Elkin amplifier, it has two 6DQ6B/6GW6 tubes and two much smaller tubes. The two small ones do not have a number on them.
Can anyone help me to find a schematic of the two-tube Elkin, or maybe someone has information and can tell me what the small tubes are so that i may try to purchase replacements.
I am not sure, this thing may be listed as a 4 tube, but other websites lead me to believe it is referred to as a two tube amp.

You can check here:

or here:

but I didn't see Elkin listed there.

My condo association has learned to live with the antennaS on my vehicleS, as there is another ham in my building on the board. They also have NOT bitched about the small 2 meter dipole attached to my window frame.

Stick that in your holiday pipe and light it up!

discrimination based on race is atgainst the laew. And yet ALL of the hoas discriminate against Polish-Americans just because of their race by making a bunch of hoa rules which all discriminate against ther Polish-American culture near Medina as you can hear here:

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=lh3a6OT2sGw

And yet the idiot courts have beeeeeeeeeeeeeeeeeeeepholding such racial discrimination by ruling in favor of the hoas' illegal racial discrimination.

For many years I parked wherever I wanted (except tow away zones) by putting a fake license plate on my vehicle. (I bought it in a garage sale here in Oregon) The tickets would go to never-never land. I was living in the Bay Area down in California. At one time, I was considering wall papering my whole bedroom in uncolletable parking tickets....:^) They are just another way that government has of collecting taxes from people unfairly. It is your duty to cheat them as much as you can.

Radios confiscated in Zimbabwe

Report: Radios used to listen to VOA Studio 7 confiscated in Zimbabwe

Tony Saxon: "Zanu (PF) supporters and self-styled war veterans here are reportedly moving door-to-door here in an effort to prevent people listening to foreign radio broadcasts by confiscating their radios.
The people from Buhera said the move was to force people not to listen to the radio reports on constitution making process that is expected to begin next week. An [opposition] MDC T councillor Tapiwa Ngorima said: 'All those listening to radio stations broadcasting from outside the country are being told they will be identified, because they are accused of influencing others to support the MDC in the area.' He said there were some incidents reported to police in Buhera but there have been no any arrests made so far. 'We have cases where our supporters lost their radios after the Zanu (PF) and war veterans accused them of listening to Studio 7. Their radios were forcibly confiscated. We have made reports to the police in Buhera but nothing was done to bring the perpetrators to book,' said the councillor. Studio 7 is broadcast through the Short Wave from Voice of America."

Legal FCC-approved (federally-approved unmodified 70 centimeter ham radios transmit on public service frequencies straight out of the box directly from the factory or store.

Because under FEDERAL law, they are shared frequencies.

They are the SAME frequencies.

So the strupid idiotcops have absolutely NO business arresting, fining, and jaiing hams just because their radios can transmit on their police frequencies.

For a cop to do so, confiscate a scanner, when the scanner owner has not met requirements constitutes only a minor misdemeanor.
Licensed Ham ops are allowed to have scanners and Ham rigs that can receive pub service frequencies.
No Ham is allowed to TX on public service frequencies with his or her Ham rig even if it can transmit there.
And, dumbass...most cops won't or don't have the knowledge to see or determine if the radio in the car of a "pullover" can transmit on their frequencies.
You are a Troll.

Actually, they can. Police and fire emergency services have priority.
If it is deemed that the ham operator is causing interference to the communications, then he can be charged.

Even though 420 - 450mhz is shared, an actual specific frequency might not be.

Just because that radio can transmit on any particular frequency out of the box, doesn't mean you have the legal right to do so.

If your radio is capable of transmitting on public service channels, and you do so, you are violating the law. For one, to do so you need to be authorized and have a license for that frequency.

Kentucky law, e.g., says that a scanning radio can be confiscated IF that radio transmits on public service channels. The exception being, a licensed amateur radio operator.

Note the word IF. This does not mean the cop can legally take your betty bearcat scanner.

Actually NO, the LEO can NOT enforce FCC Rules and Regulations, in the senerio above, and should he/she try, they can be prosecuted for exceeding their Authority. An FCC Agent can investigate such violations of said FCC Rules and Regulations, inspect Licensed Stations, and seal Radio Gear in the OFF, non-powered State, Request to inspect a non-licensed Station, but can NOT enter that location if the REQUEST is refused by the OWNER of the Land or Building. FCC Agents are NOT able to Confiscate, or Arrest ANYONE for such violations. If they need "muscle" to do the later, then on Land they go get the local US Marshal, and on water they go grab the local USCG Officer, who CAN, and Will make those things happen, when the FCC Agent has made the case. Lots of LEOs think that they can do these things, but when they get into a court of Law, they find their case thrown out due to the above stated lack of jurisdiction, and if the fellow so arrested, has a Good and Smart Mouthpiece, can actually get significant DAMAGES from the LEOs government. I have dealt with such cases, and invariably, the thing gets resolved by the local Prosecutor, long before they ever get in front of the Judge, because he, if he is smart, researches the Federal Statutes, and reams out the LEO, BIG TIME, and tries to quietly make the whole thing GO AWAY..... if he isn't all that smart, then he gets his ass handed to him in Court, by the defendants smarter Mouthpiece, and if the Judge goes along with the local guys, the whole case gets overturned on appeal, when they get to a REAL court of LAW with a Judge who follows the LAW.....

Actually, they are NOT the same frequencies.

Radios designed for 70cm amateur use are normally limited to transmitting between 420-450 Mhz, and for most FM radios, 440-450 Mhz (the FM segment).
While they can be modified, they are not normally able to transmit out of the amateur band without modification.

420-450 Mhz is allocated to amateur radio on a secondary basis, and to radiolocation (ie: radar) on a primary basis.

In some areas of the country (north of "line A", ~50 miles south of the Canadian border), and (east of "line C", along the eastern edge of Alaska, ~50 miles west of the Canadian border), 420-430 Mhz has been removed from the amateur service, and may be reallocated to land mobile use, subject to coordination with Canada.

47 CFR 2.106 footnote US230 indicates that certain segments in the 420-430 Mhz band are allocated to land mobile service for non-federal uses within 50 miles of Detroit MI, Buffalo NY, and Cleveland OH, which are along, or very close to, the Canadian border.

So, if you are using a unmodified FM radio built for part 97 amateur use, it probably will not transmit on 420-430 Mhz by default, which is the only segment that is reallocated. Since the segment is reallocated, not shared, there is no shared use.

However, there is nothing in the FCC regulations that would prevent a amateur radio operator from using a radio built for part 90 land mobile service on the amateur bands, and such radios are capable of being programmed for frequencies shared with public safety. After all, they are the same general type of radios used by public safety agencies.

It is the responsibility of the licensee to adhere to the conditions of their license.

Very true.. The FCC takes a very dim view of local law enforcement attempting to enforce laws relating to telecommnications, over which the locals have no jurisdiction whatsoever.

Still, interfering (deliberately or not) with public service units such as fire and police are criminal acts punishable usually by state law.

Do not the FCC rules and regs also state that when a public service unit has been issued a license to operate on that shared frequency that said unit has priority over amateur radio service?

Scroll down aways and you'll find a paragraph that states, she was issued a license to operate on "Adjacent" frequencies, but not on actual police frequencies.

If she bought a radio that was capable of transmitting on known assigned police frequencies, then that radio should be banned as being illegal.
As it permits transmissions outside of the allotted frequencies.

Does having a radio that has voice and code capabilities give you the legal right to transmit voice on code only frequencies?
Your viewpoint says yes.

So you're going to continue stating your belief the amateur radio operator is always the winner?
As you can see, the FCC can yank your license if they want to.

Oh so you finally found me here too huh?
Must be really really boring.

FYI, asswipe, the FCC has numerous rules and regs on what is considered to be an illegal radio. One of the most common infractions is a radio that is designed to transmit on 10 meters, but can also be easily modified to transmit on 11 meters, the CB band. Ergo, transmitting out of the legal range.

If you, as a properly licensed operator, operate on a frequency you are not entitled to, even as a ham, you can get your license yanked.

As you ARE a licensed ham, you should know this.
You are required to know it.

My FT-50 was 'modified' without opening the case.

The correct answer to the question is NO.

However the statement that there are no legally enforceable code only frequencies may be technically correct if 'code' is used in the historical sense to mean (International) Morse Code. The existing 'code' only frequency bands (e.g. 3.500 to 3.600 MHz) also permit RTTY and other data encoding protocols. They do not permit voice (AM, FM, SSB, etc.)

This answer only applies to HF bands in the US. There are CW only frequencies in the 6 and 2 meter bands. Other countries have other rules.

and just how were the MURS users who were travellers on the free way supposed to know that they were "interfering with police frequencies" on 154.570 mhz when they heard absolutely nothing on the channel until after they tried to talk to their friends on 154.570 mhz and the police department transmitted back all p.o.'ed that some people they didn't know (private U.S. citizens) was transmitting on their puiblic safety "police channel" of 154.570 mhz??????

and those travellers were monitoring the whole time on their vacation (travels)

See above. You say they can be pubnished for interfering with the police on 154.570 mhz even though they did not deliberately interfere with them.

As I understand the rule, it is NOT interference if you're (they're) transmitting when you hear no one on teh channel after monitoring it, and not transmitting over the top of them when the police are talking.

But of course, if they could hear the police and transmitted, that would be deliberate interference which they would be guilty of, but didn't and even if they did, which they didn't, is a matter for the FCC to handle, not the local-yokel cops.

So the only way to interfere with them not deliverately is what happened, not knowing anyone else was on the channel ssince they were monitoring it for a very long time, transmitted when they needed to, the the police come back which you claim they are responsible for even though it wasn't delibarate interfering since it was interfering with the police. (Not the way I understand the FCC rules say).

And the police claiming it's illegal delibarate interference for them to transmit on the "police channel" (154. 570 mhz) 9even though it wasn't delibarate since the police didn't transmit unti AFTER they heard the private citizens transmit.)
The FCC rules plainly say that the NURS channels MUST be SHARED and will NOT be assigned exclusively to any one group, person, business, or organization.

And just which public service agency has the FCC ever licensed to use 154.570 MHZ as their main police frequency or their main public service frequency????

Furthermore, just which police or public service agency has the FCC ever licensed to use 154.570 mhz as their police freqiuency or public service frequency???

Before itr was MURS, it was a business band frequency, NOT a police or public-servuce frequency.

Care to tell us the jurisdiction so an inquiry to the FCC can be made?

Banning radios that can operate on certain selected frequencies is just another of the thousands of unenforceable laws that the liberals love. Why not tax them first, and then ban them? That would be the best of both of the liberals worlds.....

Fair enough.
